SOFT COAL NEGOTIATIONS BREAK

Attempts To Add Riders' Delay Vote On Draft Bill

House Passage Expected Today

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The House ploughed its way through amendments to the Draft Bill today and leaders predicted final passage of the measure tomorrow.

Last-minute efforts to tack on "civil rights" proposals ran into solid opposition.

The House batted down, 135 to 23, an amendment by Rep. Javits (R-NY) which would forbid segregation in the Armed Forces on grounds of race, creed or color.

A similar amendment by Rep. Powell (D-NY) likewise was lost, 102 to 14. Powell's amendment would have forbidden discrimination in the services.

An amendment by Rep. Folger (D-NC) to raise the minimum registration age from 18 to 21 was defeated before the House adjourned for the day. It lost 77 to 32 on a standing vote.

Amendments Block Passage

Leaders who had talked of putting the Draft Bill to a vote today gave up hopes because of all the amendments.

Republican House Leader Halleck (R-Ind.) said it was too important a measure to be "rammed through in one day" anyway.

But passage tomorrow is practically certain.

The Senate passed a similar bill last Thursday 78 to 10. But even the freely-predicted House passage tomorrow will not make the Draft Law final.

Following House approval, Senate and House conferees will have to get together and iron out minor differences in the two bills. Then the two bodies must approve the compromise measure.

The last step is signing by the President. This is assured, because he asked for the Draft Bill in a speech March 17, almost three months to the day from expected House passage.

Actual drafting date of men 19 through 25 is still uncertain because of a provision in the House Bill. If the House plan is accepted, the President must wait 75 days before ordering the draft machinery into motion by a formal proclamation. That would mean sometime in September.

But if the Senate plan is accepted, drafting would start as soon as draft machinery could be set up after the bill becomes law.

Criticizes Bill

Rep. Allen (R-Ill.), chairman of the Rules Committee told the House today that the legislation was "not necessary."

"We all want national security," he shouted. "The question is, do we want national security by the American way or by coercion, compulsion, regimentation and control?"

He said the "brass hats" warn that we face a "great emergency" but do not think it necessary to keep Congress in session. He indicated that didn't make sense.

Rep. Wadsworth (R-NY) supported the bill emphatically, saying we had "lost thousands of lives and spent billions of dollars" because we were not prepared in the past.

Wadsworth, author and co-sponsor of the World War II Draft Law, said the world situation today is "exceedingly tense" and contains a "menace to the freedom of the people of the United States."

Rep. Cox (D-Ga.), rules committee member and backer of the measure, said opposition to the bill "alarms me greatly." He said it lends "encouragement to those seeking to undermine the government of this country."

Rich said that "if you don't bury

Six Delegate Disputes Enliven GOP Skirmish

Recognition Of Negro Involved

PHILADELPHIA, June 15 (AP) — Six delegate disputes—two of them involving negro recognition—neared a showdown today as Republican pre-convention skirmishing hit high gear.

Lawyer Ezra R. Whitla, Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, chairman of the Convention Contest Committee, said at least three of the disputes—Georgia, South Carolina and Alaska—are "serious contests."

Meanwhile candidate headquarters were running full blast. Campaign managers buttonholed early-arriving delegates, called press conferences, huddled over their voting plans.

Stassen Arrives Thursday

Backers of Harold E. Stassen announced he will be the first major candidate to reach the convention scene. The former Minnesota governor is due Thursday. New York's governor Thomas E. Dewey and Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft are expected over the weekend.

At huge convention hall last-minute preparations were hurried for the accommodation of some 16,000 delegates, alternates and favored spectators. News, radio and television workers installed miles of wire and intricate mechanism to report to the world developments at the parley.

In addition to the Georgia, South Carolina and Alaska delegate disputes, there are controversies on representation for Maryland, Mississippi and the District of Columbia. Whitla said he had not had adequate opportunity to appraise the latter three but is studying briefs of the opposing factions.

He will report to the 40-member

USES Switch Bill Vetoed By President

Terms Measure "Unwise Action"

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — President Truman vetoed a $975,914,700 Appropriation Bill today because it provided for transferring the U. S. Employment Service from the Labor Department to the Federal Security Agency.

He called it "unwise legislative action, enacted in an unsound manner." Vetoes of appropriation bills are rare. This was the 29th veto Mr. Truman has sent to Congress since last January.

It was received by the House while the Senate was debating a $41,000,000 appropriation for government corporations, including a controversial $4,000,000 item for construction of a steam plant to generate electricity for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Others Backed Up

Backed up in the Senate behind that measure were more than $16,000,000,000 in other appropriations, including funds for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Foreign Aid. Leaders pointed for action on one or more of these in a night session.

The bill which Mr. Truman vetoed carried supplemental funds for the Federal Security Agency, the U. S. Employment Service and the Public Health Service for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

The President complained that the shift of USES had been "tacked onto" the appropriation bill without opportunity for either the House or Senate Labor Committees to examine the proposed change. He also said it is another in a series of legislative actions "stripping the Department of Labor of essential funds and functions."

"To remove the United States Employment Service from the department would further weaken and demoralize it and reduce the entire department to such a minor status as to raise seriously the question of the validity of its continu-

ERP Gets Billion

WASHINGTON, June 15—(INS)—The Senate voted tonight to restore approximately one billion dollars of the cut made by the House in the European Recovery Program.

This was accomplished by putting ERP on a 12-month basis, as originally intended, instead of on 15 months as provided in the House-passed appropriation bill.

Palestine Patrol Uses U. S. Planes

CAIRO, June 15 (AP)—Count Folke Bernadotte said today United Nations truce observers are patrolling the Palestine Coast in American-supplied planes to check on the arrival of ships carrying immigrants and supplies.

The U. N. mediator said he had received four C-47 transports and one small Beechcraft from the United States.

A patrol by surface ships also is planned. Bernadotte denied, however, having asked the British for ships as a British Foreign Office spokesman asserted a few days ago. He said he had only asked for certain material and equipment for his observers.

The foreign office spokesman said in London today that the British have agreed "in principle" to provide ships and planes for the U. N. observers. Actual allotment of the craft, their numbers and the authority under which they will operate is being left to the British Military authorities in the Middle East, the spokesman added.

Bernadotte arrived by plane from his headquarters on the Greek Island of Rhodes for informal talks tonight and tomorrow with Arab political leaders. He will go to Tel Aviv Thursday to confer with Jewish authorities.

Having arranged a four-week truce in Palestine, he now is attempting to find a solution of the long range issue.

The Holy Land remained quiet on this fifth day of the truce. Bernadotte told newsmen that as far as he knew there was no fighting.

Russia Agrees To New Danube River Meeting

Accepts Invitation To Discuss Commerce

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — Russia cleared the way today for possible settlement of one long-standing east-west issue—reopening the Danube River to free international commerce.

Showing an apparent new willingness to compromise, Moscow accepted an American proposal to call a 10-nation conference for July 30 to lift existing trade between Eastern and Western Europe and its reopening is tied up with hopes of reviving that trade to help European recovery.

Russia abandoned in part its objection to letting Austria take part in the conference. It agreed that the Austrians might send a non-voting delegation.

The manner in which Moscow agreed to go along with American ideas was viewed by some diplomatic officials as another gesture in the Soviet "peace offensive." They noted, however, that Russia as well as the western powers has a stake in reopening the Danube. They further pointed out that in the conference the Soviet Bloc would have a seven to three voting margin.

The Big Four powers — Russia, United States, Britain and France — already have agreed that Russia's Eastern European satellites will be invited, including Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, The Ukraine and Yugoslavia.

The softened Russian attitude was expressed in a note dated June 12 which was announced by the State Department. On one point it raised objections to proposals put forward by the United States in negotiations which have been in progress for the last several months. Moscow said Yugoslavia has advised it would be difficult to hold the conference in Belgrade, as originally planned, because of lack of facilities. Instead Moscow proposed that it be held in the capital of one of the other Danubian states.

Officials assumed that Britain and France would go along with the idea of meeting July 30 in one of the other Balkan capitols, but foresaw practial difficulties. The United States has insisted that in all post-war conferences with Russia adequate communications and other facilities be provided for full reporting of the proceedings. There must be housing facilities, too, for official delegations.

Russia's note was in reply to American proposals made May 25, which followed negotiations in progress since February.

Russia Is Denied Truce Observers

LAKE SUCCESS, June 15 (AP) — The United Nations Security Council today rejected a Russian move to put Soviet military observers in Palestine.

Only the Soviet Ukraine supported Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in his efforts to get Russian soldiers in the Holy Land to help supervise the four-week truce. The other nine members of the 11-National Council, including the United States, abstained and the proposal was lost. Council resolutions need seven affirmative votes to pass.

Gromyko immediately blamed the United States for the defeat of his plan. He said the result was linked to the zigzag policy of the United States on the Palestine question and cautioned delegates to watch American moves closely.

Gromyko added tartly that perhaps the truce had been concocted so "another bargain" could be struck behind the back of the United Nations. He did not elaborate on his comments or his charges.

The council voted after hearing a report from Count Folke Bernadotte that all fighting has ceased in Palestine. The U. N. mediator said the armistice had worked out better than he expected.

The council agreed to a request from Bernadotte that all 58 members of the U. N. be asked to see that immigration into the Holy Land be controlled rigidly during the truce. A U. N. press officer said Bernadotte hoped to put U. N. observers at various ports to report on immigrants sailing for Palestine and to board vessels bound for the Holy Land.

Truman Tells Crowd He's 'Pouring It On' Congress

Appears In Pajamas At Barstow, Calif.

ABOARD TRUMAN TRAIN EN ROUTE TO KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 15 (AP)—President Truman told southwestern voters today he has been "pouring it on" Congress until "they've got the jitters" and "gone to work.

He told a crowd at Albuquerque, N. M., the issues before the country 'are sharply drawn' as a result of his cross country tour.

Mr. Truman spoke from the rear platform of his special car to a police-estimated 8,000 persons assembled along the railroad tracks.

He said the issue now is between "the people," whom he said he represented, and "the special interests."

Says Congress Has "Jitters"

The president's remark about Congress having the "jitters" came during the course of his off-the-cuff talk when he said "I drew the issue" in speeches about the country.

"Pour it on them," some one shouted from the crowd. The president has said repeatedly he is going to keep "pouring it on Congress."

Replying to the shout, he declared:

"I've been pouring it on them and they've got the jitters and they've gone to work," the president said.

Repeats His Hopes

Mr. Truman, in a talk at Winslow, Ariz., renewed his expression of hope that Congress will pass price control, housing and other legislation before quitting for the GOP convention at Philadelphia.

"I am going back to Independence, Mo., and see the family, and then go on to Washington and finish up the necessary work that has to be done there when the Congress adjourns," Mr. Truman said, "I am sincerely hoping that some of the things in which I am vitally interested will be accomplished by that time."

He made an appearance in pajamas and dressing gown last night at the little California town of Barstow.

"I had gone to bed," he told the crowd, grinning, "but got up."

"Miss Europe" Likes English

The question: "which do you prefer — American men or French men?"

There she works as a mannequin under her real name, Jacqueline Donny. She was in her working clothes—an elaborately-styled "new look" evening gown.

Truman May Veto New Trade Bill

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP) — Congress sent President Truman today a trade agreements bill which he doesn't like and may veto.

The House passed the measure by voice vote, accepting amendments added by the Senate. The Senate approved the bill yesterday, 68 to 10, over Democratic protests that it would wreck the Foreign Trade Program.

The bill revives for one year the Trade Agreements Act which lapsed last Saturday night. It requires the President to wait up to four months, while the Federal Tariff Commission investigates, before making tariff agreements with foreign countries.

Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Marshall, backed by nearly every Senate Democrat, urged that the act be extended for three years without any curbs on the President's tariff-making authority.

The possibility of a veto was mentioned by several Senators. They said there was a good chance that the Senate, if not the House, would sustain a veto. Democrats came within a few votes yesterday of changing the Senate Bill to provide a two-or three-year extension.

But there also were predictions that Mr. Truman would accept the present bill as better than none and hope that Congress would give him one more to his liking later.

Rep. Doughton (D-NC), author of the original act that was sponsored by then State Secretary Cordell Hull, said he hoped Mr. Truman would not resort to a veto. He took the position that the GOP-sponsored bill is better than letting the Trade Act die.

House Republican Leader Halleck, Indiana, told reporters: "Another reckless political veto might well mean an end to the reciprocal trade program."

Huge Naval Fund Passed By Senate

Would Authorize $3,686,733,250

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—A $3,686,733,250 fund to operate and expand the "world's most formidable Navy" sailed through the Senate tonight with colors flying.

Goes Back To House

The measure goes back to the House for action on Senate increases of more than $125,000,000.

The Senate passed the bill in less than 30 minutes.

Included in the bill are:

Some $6,000,000 to begin building the world's largest aircraft carrier. This would be a high-speed, flush-deck flat-top able to send out or land the fastest jet-driven planes, or bombers reported capable of packing an atomic bomb.

Funds to keep 277 first line combat ships operating, plus 486 auxiliary combatant vessels. These are in addition to a total reserve of 1,879 inactive vessels of which 664 are classed as major fighting ships.

Authority and funds to maintain the Naval Air arm at 14,500 available aircraft. Part of these funds were carried in earlier money bills. The Senate was told that aircraft costs of $430,000,000 during the next year may rise to $1,800,000,000 by 1952.

Could Expand Personnel

Funds and authority to expand manpower to 527,014 men and officers during the next 12 months, compared with 518,092 in the last year.

Saltonstall told the Senate that the Navy actually would spend more than five billion dollars—$5,558,000,000—during the next year or nearly $1,800,000 more than Congress is voting. This is possible because of unused funds from previous years plus use of wartime reserves and stocks.

He added a warning that when these are gone, the Navy may need $6,500,000,000 a year by fiscal 1950 and 1951.

The Senate committee found fault with the navy's use of "project orders." Under these, contracts may be let with Congress supplying cash later. It noted that many of these are issued just before each fiscal year ends.

The Senate upped many items above House totals including funds to employ civilians. It gave the Marines a total of $346,684,000, or $6,495,000 more than the house.

It also raised the daily ration allowance for enlisted personnel from 90 cents to $1.05 a day.

Johnsville TVA Fund Approved

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The Senate tonight approved a $4,000,000 appropriation for starting a TVA steam-electric plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn.

The roll call vote was 45 to 37.

The Senate debated the item for a short time last night, then spent several hours discussing it today. One effort to throw the item out on a parliamentary maneuver was overruled by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), Senate presiding officer. Senator Kem (R-Mo) raised the point that the provision represented "new legislation" in an appropriations bill.

The plant, designed to supplement the Tennessee Valley Authority's hydroelectric output, would cost an estimated $54,000,000.

The House refused May 11 by a voted of 120 to 157 to approve the $4,000,000.

The outlay, however, was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee and written into the Government Corporations Appropriations Bill.

House concurrence in the Senate addition will be necessary for TVA to get the money.

The bill as it went to the Senate from the appropriations committee carried a total of $30,972,061 for TVA, compared with $27,389,061 voted by the House. President Truman recommended $35,154,600 for the agency.

Mine Owners Walk Out On John L. Lewis

Government Calls Meeting Thursday

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The annual coal crisis came into full force today with the breakdown of negotiations for a contract to keep the miners digging after July 6.

The government, however, immediately stepped into the dispute. Cyrus S. Ching, head of the Mediation and Conciliation Service, called a meeting of both sides Thursday morning (9:30 a. m., EST).

They walked out on him. They announced that the talks had been shut down because they were getting nowhere. They said it was all the United Mine Workers chief's fault—that he wouldn't even talk terms without first getting his royalty-financed union welfare plan in operation.

The Southern Coal Producers Association left the meeting, too, but said it did not concur in the move. The southern group said it was available to bargain.

Lewis Makes Charge

Lewis promptly charged that the operators "under the Taft-Hartley Slave Law and at the expense of the taxpayers" were trying to "beat the coal miners into submission." He said the union negotiators had been "bored" talking to operator spokesmen who, he implied, spoke only on orders from higher up. Then Lewis called his 200-man policy committee to a June 24 meeting here for "instructions."

It was taken for granted those "instructions" will deal with whether the miners shall work when they come back July 6 from their annual two-week vacation. The layoff starts June 25 and the current working agreement ends June 30, before they are due back.

Ching, in a telegram to the Union and the producers, reminded them of the Taft-Hartley Law section which says his office should move in if a work stoppage threatens to interrupt commerce.

And both union and manaement, he said, have a "duty and responsibility" to try to break the impasse.

O'Neill Blames Lewis

The chief obstacle, he said, was the UMW head's insistence on putting the 1947 welfare fund, now built up to about $40,000,000 on a 10-cent per ton royalty on coal, into operation before anything else is done.

Judge T. Alan Goldsborough of U. S. District Court here, who ordered Lewis into the talks which blew up today, will hear arguments Saturday on spending the fund. Ezra Van Horn, as operator representative on the welfare fund board, is suing to stop payments under a plan agreed to by Lewis and Senator Bridges (R-NH), third board member.

Lewis said Benjamin F. Fairless, head of Universtates Steel, and George M. Humphrey, chairman of the board of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company, hold the key to the negotiations.

U. S. Steel is the biggest industry producer and user of coal. The Pittsburgh concern is the nation's biggest commercial producer.

Throughout the fruitless talks, Lewis said, "representatives" of those two men sat on either side of O'Neill, chief operator spokesman, "to see that he keeps on an even keel." He named them as Harry Moses, president of H. C. Frick Coke Company, a part of the U. S. Steel

New Cancer Treating Technique Holds Hope For Curing Disease

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — Lewis L. Strauss, member of the Atomic Energy Commission, reported today that a new technique for using radioactive iodine to treat cancer "holds out hope" for curing the disease.

Strauss said he had been advised of the development by Dr. Cornelius P. Phoads, director of the Sloan-Kettering Institute at Memorial Hospital in New York City.

Strauss first made the disclosure before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee. The group is studying requests of the commission for a restoration of House cuts in AEC appropriations for the 1949 fiscal year, starting July 1. He later elaborated on his testimony to reporters.

Radio-active iodine has been used successfully, Strauss said, in the treatment of thyroid cancer. Because of iodine's affinity for the thyroid, he explained, it has not been possible before to use it successfully in other parts of the body.

Strauss said the new technique developed at Sloan-Kettering in the last few days from research financed by AEC funds deals with this.

It indicates, he said, that a means of concentrating any required amount in any tissue or organ of the body probably has been discovered.

He said that Dr. Rhoads had reported that the method is still complex, but seems to work. The doctor added that while the results are wholly preliminary, they are impressive.

Radio-active iodine may be ad-

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — House investigators today held the State Department and the National Broadcasting Company both at fault for the airing of Voice of America "smear" programs.

A report by an expenditures subcommittee also recommended "safeguards" to prevent any more such programs from being broadcast. And it suggested that maybe the Voice of America shouldn't talk so much.

The subcommittee investigated after many lawmakers charged that American states and customs were "smeared" by "know North America" programs prepared by NBC for the State Department and beamed to Latin-America last winter.

One of these programs contained the statement "New England was founded by hypocrisy and Texas by sin." Other references were described as offensive to Mormons, Quakers and other groups.

The House Group reported that NBC "did not properly discharge the great responsibility which it undertook in its contract with the State Department." It said the "unforunate" broadcasts would not have occurred if NBC "exercised reasonable care and ordinary caution."

And the report said "the State Department was negligent in permitting programs of this type to be broadcast at the expense of the taxpayers of the United States."

(Spokesmen for both NBC and the State Department accepted, during the committee hearings, a share of the responsibility for the broadcasts.

(NBC said, however, that with the limited funds available it was

Recognition Of Negro Involved

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — President Truman vetoed a $975,914,700 Appropriation Bill today because it provided for transferring the U. S. Employment Service from the Labor Department to the Federal Security Agency.

He called it "unwise legislative action, enacted in an unsound manner." Vetoes of appropriation bills are rare. This was the 29th veto Mr. Truman has sent to Congress since last January.

It was received by the House while the Senate was debating a $47,000,000 appropriation for government corporations, including a controversial $4,000,000 item for construction of a steam plant to generate electricity for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Others Backed Up

Backed up in the Senate behind that measure were more than $16,000,000,000 in other appropriations, including funds for the Army, Navy, Air Force and Foreign Aid. Leaders pointed for action on one or more of these in a night session.

The bill which Mr. Truman vetoed carried supplemental funds for the Federal Security Agency, the U. S. Employment Service and the Public Health Service for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

The President complained that the shift of USES had been "tacked onto" the appropriation bill without opportunity for either the House or Senate Labor Committees to examine the proposed change. He also said it is another in a series of legislative actions "stripping the Department of Labor of essential funds and functions."

"To remove the United States Employment Service from the department would further weaken and demoralize it and reduce the entire department to such a minor status as to raise seriously the question of the validity of its continu-

PHILADELPHIA, June 15 (AP) — Six delegate disputes—two of them involving negro recognition—neared a showdown today as Republican pre-convention skirmishing hit high gear.

Lawyer Ezra R. Whitla, Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, chairman of the Convention Contest Committee, said at least three of the disputes—Georgia, South Carolina and Alaska—are "serious contests."

Meanwhile candidate headquarters were running full blast. Campaign managers buttonholed early-arriving delegates, called press conferences, huddled over their voting plans.

Stassen Arrives Thursday

Backers of Harold E. Stassen announced he will be the first major candidate to reach the convention scene. The former Minnesota governor is due Thursday. New York's governor Thomas E. Dewey and Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft are expected over the weekend.

At huge convention hall last-minute preparations were hurried for the accommodation of some 16,000 delegates, alternates and favored spectators. News, radio and television workers installed miles of wire and intricate mechanism to report to the world developments at the parley.

In addition to the Georgia, South Carolina and Alaska delegate disputes, there are controversies on representation for Maryland, Mississippi and the District of Columbia. Whitla said he had not had adequate opportunity to appraise the latter three but is studying briefs of the opposing factions.

He will report to the 40-member

Palestine Patrol Uses U. S. Planes

CAIRO, June 15 (AP)—Count Folke Bernadotte said today United Nations truce observers are patrolling the Palestine Coast in American-supplied planes to check on the arrival of ships carrying immigrants and supplies.

The U. N. mediator said he had received four C-47 transports and one small Beechcraft from the United States.

A patrol by surface ships also is planned. Bernadotte denied, however, having asked the British for ships as a British Foreign Office spokesman asserted a few days ago. He said he had only asked for certain material and equipment for his observers.

The foreign office spokesman said in London today that the British have agreed "in principle" to provide ships and planes for the U. N. observers. Actual allotment of the craft, their numbers and the authority under which they will operate is being left to the British Military authorities in the Middle East, the spokesman added.

Bernadotte arrived by plane from his headquarters on the Greek Island of Rhodes for informal talks tonight and tomorrow with Arab political leaders. He will go to Tel Aviv Thursday to confer with Jewish authorities.

Having arranged a four-week truce in Palestine, he now is attempting to find a solution of the long range issue.

The Holy Land remained quiet on this fifth day of the truce. Bernadotte told newsmen that as far as he knew there was no fighting.

Russia Agrees To New Danube River Meeting

Accepts Invitation To Discuss Commerce

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — Russia cleared the way today for possible settlement of one long-standing east-west issue—reopening the Danube River to free international commerce.

Showing an apparent new willingness to compromise, Moscow accepted an American proposal to call a 10-nation conference for July 30 to lift existing trade between Eastern and Western Europe and its reopening is tied up with hopes of reviving that trade to help European recovery.

Russia abandoned in part its objection to letting Austria take part in the conference. It agreed that the Austrians might send a non-voting delegation.

The manner in which Moscow agreed to go along with American ideas was viewed by some diplomatic officials as another gesture in the Soviet "peace offensive." They noted, however, that Russia as well as the western powers has a stake in reopening the Danube. They further pointed out that in the conference the Soviet Bloc would have a seven to three voting margin.

The Big Four powers — Russia, United States, Britain and France — already have agreed that Russia's Eastern European satellites will be invited, including Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, The Ukraine and Yugoslavia.

The softened Russian attitude was expressed in a note dated June 12 which was announced by the State Department. On one point it raised objections to proposals put forward by the United States in negotiations which have been in progress for the last several months. Moscow said Yugoslavia has advised it would be difficult to hold the conference in Belgrade, as originally planned, because of lack of facilities. Instead Moscow proposed that it be held in the capital of one of the other Danubian states.

Officials assumed that Britain and France would go along with the idea of meeting July 30 in one of the other Balkan capitols, but foresaw practial difficulties. The United States has insisted that in all post-war conferences with Russia adequate communications and other facilities be provided for full reporting of the proceedings. There must be housing facilities, too, for official delegations.

Russia's note was in reply to American proposals made May 25, which followed negotiations in progress since February.

Russia Is Denied Truce Observers

LAKE SUCCESS, June 15 (AP) — The United Nations Security Council today rejected a Russian move to put Soviet military observers in Palestine.

Only the Soviet Ukraine supported Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in his efforts to get Russian soldiers in the Holy Land to help supervise the four-week truce. The other nine members of the 11-National Council, including the United States, abstained and the proposal was lost. Council resolutions need seven affirmative votes to pass.

Gromyko immediately blamed the United States for the defeat of his plan. He said the result was linked to the zigzag policy of the United States on the Palestine question and cautioned delegates to watch American moves closely.

Gromyko added tartly that perhaps the truce had been concocted so "another bargain" could be struck behind the back of the United Nations. He did not elaborate on his comments or his charges.

The council voted after hearing a report from Count Folke Bernadotte that all fighting has ceased in Palestine. The U. N. mediator said the armistice had worked out better than he expected.

The council agreed to a request from Bernadotte that all 58 members of the U. N. be asked to see that immigration into the Holy Land be controlled rigidly during the truce. A U. N. press officer said Bernadotte hoped to put U. N. observers at various ports to report on immigrants sailing for Palestine and to board vessels bound for the Holy Land.

Appears In Pajamas At Barstow, Calif.

ABOARD TRUMAN TRAIN EN ROUTE TO KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 15 (AP)—President Truman told southwestern voters today he has been "pouring it on" Congress until "they've got the jitters" and "gone to work.

He told a crowd at Albuquerque, N. M., the issues before the country 'are sharply drawn' as a result of his cross country tour.

Mr. Truman spoke from the rear platform of his special car to a police-estimated 8,000 persons assembled along the railroad tracks.

He said the issue now is between "the people," whom he said he represented, and "the special interests."

Says Congress Has "Jitters"

The president's remark about Congress having the "jitters" came during the course of his off-the-cuff talk when he said "I drew the issue" in speeches about the country.

"Pour it on them," some one shouted from the crowd. The president has said repeatedly he is going to keep "pouring it on Congress."

Replying to the shout, he declared:

"I've been pouring it on them and they've got the jitters and they've gone to work," the president said.

Repeats His Hopes

Mr. Truman, in a talk at Winslow, Ariz., renewed his expression of hope that Congress will pass price control, housing and other legislation before quitting for the GOP convention at Philadelphia.

"I am going back to Independence, Mo., and see the family, and then go on to Washington and finish up the necessary work that has to be done there when the Congress adjourns," Mr. Truman said, "I am sincerely hoping that some of the things in which I am vitally interested will be accomplished by that time."

He made an appearance in pajamas and dressing gown last night at the little California town of Barstow.

"I had gone to bed," he told the crowd, grinning, "but got up."

"Miss Europe" Likes English

The question: "which do you prefer — American men or French men?"

There she works as a mannequin under her real name, Jacqueline Donny. She was in her working clothes—an elaborately-styled "new look" evening gown.

Truman May Veto New Trade Bill

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP) — Congress sent President Truman today a trade agreements bill which he doesn't like and may veto.

The House passed the measure by voice vote, accepting amendments added by the Senate. The Senate approved the bill yesterday, 68 to 10, over Democratic protests that it would wreck the Foreign Trade Program.

The bill revives for one year the Trade Agreements Act which lapsed last Saturday night. It requires the President to wait up to four months, while the Federal Tariff Commission investigates, before making tariff agreements with foreign countries.

Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Marshall, backed by nearly every Senate Democrat, urged that the act be extended for three years without any curbs on the President's tariff-making authority.

The possibility of a veto was mentioned by several Senators. They said there was a good chance that the Senate, if not the House, would sustain a veto. Democrats came within a few votes yesterday of changing the Senate Bill to provide a two-or three-year extension.

But there also were predictions that Mr. Truman would accept the present bill as better than none and hope that Congress would give him one more to his liking later.

Rep. Doughton (D-NC), author of the original act that was sponsored by then State Secretary Cordell Hull, said he hoped Mr. Truman would not resort to a veto. He took the position that the GOP-sponsored bill is better than letting the Trade Act die.

House Republican Leader Halleck, Indiana, told reporters: "Another reckless political veto might well mean an end to the reciprocal trade program."

Huge Naval Fund Passed By Senate

Would Authorize $3,686,733,250

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—A $3,686,733,250 fund to operate and expand the "world's most formidable Navy" sailed through the Senate tonight with colors flying.

Goes Back To House

The measure goes back to the House for action on Senate increases of more than $125,000,000.

The Senate passed the bill in less than 30 minutes.

Included in the bill are:

Some $6,000,000 to begin building the world's largest aircraft carrier. This would be a high-speed, flush-deck flat-top able to send out or land the fastest jet-driven planes, or bombers reported capable of packing an atomic bomb.

Funds to keep 277 first line combat ships operating, plus 486 auxiliary combatant vessels. These are in addition to a total reserve of 1,879 inactive vessels of which 664 are classed as major fighting ships.

Authority and funds to maintain the Naval Air arm at 14,500 available aircraft. Part of these funds were carried in earlier money bills. The Senate was told that aircraft costs of $430,000,000 during the next year may rise to $1,800,000,000 by 1952.

Could Expand Personnel

Funds and authority to expand manpower to 527,014 men and officers during the next 12 months, compared with 518,092 in the last year.

Saltonstall told the Senate that the Navy actually would spend more than five billion dollars—$5,558,000,000—during the next year or nearly $1,800,000 more than Congress is voting. This is possible because of unused funds from previous years plus use of wartime reserves and stocks.

He added a warning that when these are gone, the Navy may need $6,500,000,000 a year by fiscal 1950 and 1951.

The Senate committee found fault with the navy's use of "project orders." Under these, contracts may be let with Congress supplying cash later. It noted that many of these are issued just before each fiscal year ends.

The Senate upped many items above House totals including funds to employ civilians. It gave the Marines a total of $346,684,000, or $6,495,000 more than the house.

It also raised the daily ration allowance for enlisted personnel from 90 cents to $1.05 a day.

Johnsville TVA Fund Approved

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The Senate tonight approved a $4,000,000 appropriation for starting a TVA steam-electric plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn.

The roll call vote was 45 to 37.

The Senate debated the item for a short time last night, then spent several hours discussing it today. One effort to throw the item out on a parliamentary maneuver was overruled by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), Senate presiding officer. Senator Kem (R-Mo) raised the point that the provision represented "new legislation" in an appropriations bill.

The plant, designed to supplement the Tennessee Valley Authority's hydroelectric output, would cost an estimated $54,000,000.

The House refused May 11 by a voted of 120 to 157 to approve the $4,000,000.

The outlay, however, was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee and written into the Government Corporations Appropriations Bill.

House concurrence in the Senate addition will be necessary for TVA to get the money.

The bill as it went to the Senate from the appropriations committee carried a total of $30,972,061 for TVA, compared with $27,389,061 voted by the House. President Truman recommended $35,154,600 for the agency.

Mine Owners Walk Out On John L. Lewis

Government Calls Meeting Thursday

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The annual coal crisis came into full force today with the breakdown of negotiations for a contract to keep the miners digging after July 6.

The government, however, immediately stepped into the dispute. Cyrus S. Ching, head of the Mediation and Conciliation Service, called a meeting of both sides Thursday morning (9:30 a. m., EST).

They walked out on him. They announced that the talks had been shut down because they were getting nowhere. They said it was all the United Mine Workers chief's fault—that he wouldn't even talk terms without first getting his royalty-financed union welfare plan in operation.

The Southern Coal Producers Association left the meeting, too, but said it did not concur in the move. The southern group said it was available to bargain.

Lewis Makes Charge

Lewis promptly charged that the operators "under the Taft-Hartley Slave Law and at the expense of the taxpayers" were trying to "beat the coal miners into submission." He said the union negotiators had been "bored" talking to operator spokesmen who, he implied, spoke only on orders from higher up. Then Lewis called his 200-man policy committee to a June 24 meeting here for "instructions."

It was taken for granted those "instructions" will deal with whether the miners shall work when they come back July 6 from their annual two-week vacation. The layoff starts June 25 and the current working agreement ends June 30, before they are due back.

Ching, in a telegram to the Union and the producers, reminded them of the Taft-Hartley Law section which says his office should move in if a work stoppage threatens to interrupt commerce.

And both union and manaement, he said, have a "duty and responsibility" to try to break the impasse.

O'Neill Blames Lewis

The chief obstacle, he said, was the UMW head's insistence on putting the 1947 welfare fund, now built up to about $40,000,000 on a 10-cent per ton royalty on coal, into operation before anything else is done.

Judge T. Alan Goldsborough of U. S. District Court here, who ordered Lewis into the talks which blew up today, will hear arguments Saturday on spending the fund. Ezra Van Horn, as operator representative on the welfare fund board, is suing to stop payments under a plan agreed to by Lewis and Senator Bridges (R-NH), third board member.

Lewis said Benjamin F. Fairless, head of Universtates Steel, and George M. Humphrey, chairman of the board of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company, hold the key to the negotiations.

U. S. Steel is the biggest industry producer and user of coal. The Pittsburgh concern is the nation's biggest commercial producer.

Throughout the fruitless talks, Lewis said, "representatives" of those two men sat on either side of O'Neill, chief operator spokesman, "to see that he keeps on an even keel." He named them as Harry Moses, president of H. C. Frick Coke Company, a part of the U. S. Steel

ERP Gets Billion

WASHINGTON, June 15—(INS)—The Senate voted tonight to restore approximately one billion dollars of the cut made by the House in the European Recovery Program.

This was accomplished by putting ERP on a 12-month basis, as originally intended, instead of on 15 months as provided in the House-passed appropriation bill.

State Department, NBC Are Blamed For Voice Of America's "Smears"

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — House investigators today held the State Department and the National Broadcasting Company both at fault for the airing of Voice of America "smear" programs.

A report by an expenditures subcommittee also recommended "safeguards" to prevent any more such programs from being broadcast. And it suggested that maybe the Voice of America shouldn't talk so much.

The subcommittee investigated after many lawmakers charged that American states and customs were "smeared" by "know North America" programs prepared by NBC for the State Department and beamed to Latin-America last winter.

One of these programs contained the statement "New England was founded by hypocrisy and Texas by sin." Other references were described as offensive to Mormons, Quakers and other groups.

The House Group reported that NBC "did not properly discharge the great responsibility which it undertook in its contract with the State Department." It said the "unforunate" broadcasts would not have occurred if NBC "exercised reasonable care and ordinary caution."

And the report said "the State Department was negligent in permitting programs of this type to be broadcast at the expense of the taxpayers of the United States."

(Spokesmen for both NBC and the State Department accepted, during the committee hearings, a share of the responsibility for the broadcasts.

(NBC said, however, that with the limited funds available it was

New Cancer Treating Technique Holds Hope For Curing Disease

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — Lewis L. Strauss, member of the Atomic Energy Commission, reported today that a new technique for using radioactive iodine to treat cancer "holds out hope" for curing the disease.

Strauss said he had been advised of the development by Dr. Cornelius P. Phoads, director of the Sloan-Kettering Institute at Memorial Hospital in New York City.

Strauss first made the disclosure before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee. The group is studying requests of the commission for a restoration of House cuts in AEC appropriations for the 1949 fiscal year, starting July 1. He later elaborated on his testimony to reporters.

Radio-active iodine has been used successfully, Strauss said, in the treatment of thyroid cancer. Because of iodine's affinity for the thyroid, he explained, it has not been possible before to use it successfully in other parts of the body.

Strauss said the new technique developed at Sloan-Kettering in the last few days from research financed by AEC funds deals with this.

It indicates, he said, that a means of concentrating any required amount in any tissue or organ of the body probably has been discovered.

He said that Dr. Rhoads had reported that the method is still complex, but seems to work. The doctor added that while the results are wholly preliminary, they are impressive.

Radio-active iodine may be ad-

Oleo Tax Fight May Delay Farm Bill Action

End-Of Session Maneuvering Seen

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—A new fight over Oleomargarine tax repeal threatened tonight to scuttle long-range farm legislation in the Senate.

The Senate Bill, which would set up a permanent system of farm price supports, was shoved aside temporarily in favor of an appropriation measure.

And then the complicated, end-of-a-session parliamentary maneuvering began.

Threatens Repealer

Senator Fulbright (D-Ark), backing the oleo tax repealer, said he would offer it as an amendment to the farm bill.

Senator Langer (R-ND) announced that if Fulbright did so, he would offer an anti-lynch measure as an amendment to the Oleo Bill. Langer is against repealing oleo taxes.

All this raised the possibility that the Farm Bill might well be bogged down for the remainder of this session in arguments over oleo, civil rights and other matters. President Truman called on Congress yesterday to pass a long-range Farm Bill even if it had to stay in session all summer.

Some Senators said they might accept instead a House Bill which extends the present price support plan for 18 months.

The Senate Bill, sponsored by Senator Aiken (R-Vt), would set up a permanent system of farm supports to replace those which expire at the end of this year.

Under this system the government puts a floor under the price of agricultural commodities through crop purchases, loans to farmers or other means.

Would Fix Parity

The measure also is designed to "modernize" the method of fixing parity prices.

Aiken told the Senate tonight that unless a long-range Farm Bill is passed tonight or tomorrow there will be no farm legislation at the present session.

But two Democratic Senators — Lucas (Ill) and Russell (Ga) noted that the House-approved stopgap bill is ready for Senate action.

Lucas, Democratic whip, added that he understands the House would not even consider the long-range Senate plan.

But Aiken, with support from Senator Thye (R-Minn), held firm. He said the House Bill cannot be accepted by Senators. He added that the best and perhaps only way to reach a compromise is to pass the Senate Bill.

Whitla's committee will send the delegate disputes and recommendations to the entire National Committee of the party, meeting Thursday morning. The national committee sits as a jury in the contests.

ministered either orally or by injection. It offers, Strauss said, a non-surgical treatment for a deep-seated lesion without damage to surrounding tissue. Once the radioactive iodine is concentrated in an infected part of the body, its radiation immediately attacks and destroys the malignant tissue.

Previously it has been used in the treatment of thyroid cancer because the iodine went to that part of the body immediately upon being administered. If the technique developed at Sloan-Kettering lives up to its advance expectations, it would be possible to use the treatment for other cancer-infected portions of the body.

Lewis, asked about the southerners position at his news conference, and whether he would talk with them, told reporters: "They walked out, too, didn't they?"

Operator sources said a previous court order issued by Goldsborough is one reason the southern group is willing to continue bargaining. Goldsborough ordered Lewis to bargain with this group. The southerners believe the order applies to them, too.

One Bill Advances

One of the largest annual money bills—which passed the House carrying $6,509,939,000 for the national military establishment-advanced a step on the Senate side.

Chairman Gurney (R-SD) said the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee completed hearings today and would begin deciding upon individual items at a closed session Wednesday afternoon.

The House cut $647,903,000 in cash from the President's budget requests and Gurney said a new $180,000,000 estimate had arrived since the House acted. It covers construction items approved by Congress since the House acted, he explained.

This bill carries operating funds for the Army and Air Force as well as Secretary of National Defense Forrestal and all agencies operating under him, other than the Navy and Marines.

Other big money bills awaiting Senate action are the $3,812,170,250 Navy Bill and the $6,125,700,000 Foreign Aid Measure.

Printing Firms Say ITU Failed In Bargaining

Baltimore Group Notifies NLRB

BALTIMORE, June 15 (AP) — A group of Baltimore Printing firms today asked the National Labor Relations Board to find that the International Typographical Union was responsible for the failure of its Baltimore Local No. 12 to bargain in good faith.

An NLRB examiner found several weeks ago that the local had refused to bargain with the Baltimore Graphic Arts League but he recommended that a similar complaint against the international be dropped.

The NLRB itself has not yet ruled in the case, one of the first in the country to test provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law which prohibit the closed shop.

The Graphic Arts League renewed its charges against the ITU today in a list of exceptions it took to the examiners report.

It said that all during negotiations on a new contract the local was "clearly an instrumentality of the ITU . . . the constitution and bylaws make the locals abjectly subservient to the ITU and give the ITU very effective disciplinary controls to insure that the locals jump everytime the ITU whip is snapped."

The local filed exceptions to the examiner's report and reiterated its argument that it had bargained in good faith. It pointed to a proposal that it would drop all the clauses to which the employers objected if they grant "certain economic conditions."

Sidney J. Barban, regional attorney for the NLRB, also took exceptions and insisted that the ITU be found guilty of failure to bargain in good faith.

The NLRB in Washington will consider the exceptions, as well as oral arguments still to be heard, before it makes a ruling in the case.

Oleo Tax Fight May Delay Farm Bill Action

End-Of Session Maneuvering Seen

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—A new fight over Oleomargarine tax repeal threatened tonight to scuttle long-range farm legislation in the Senate.

The Senate Bill, which would set up a permanent system of farm price supports, was shoved aside temporarily in favor of an appropriation measure.

And then the complicated, end-of-a-session parliamentary maneuvering began.

Threatens Repealer

Senator Fulbright (D-Ark), backing the oleo tax repealer, said he would offer it as an amendment to the farm bill.

Senator Langer (R-ND) announced that if Fulbright did so, he would offer an anti-lynch measure as an amendment to the Oleo Bill. Langer is against repealing oleo taxes.

All this raised the possibility that the Farm Bill might well be bogged down for the remainder of this session in arguments over oleo, civil rights and other matters. President Truman called on Congress yesterday to pass a long-range Farm Bill even if it had to stay in session all summer.

Some Senators said they might accept instead a House Bill which extends the present price support plan for 18 months.

The Senate Bill, sponsored by Senator Aiken (R-Vt), would set up a permanent system of farm supports to replace those which expire at the end of this year.

Under this system the government puts a floor under the price of agricultural commodities through crop purchases, loans to farmers or other means.

Would Fix Parity

The measure also is designed to "modernize" the method of fixing parity prices.

Aiken told the Senate tonight that unless a long-range Farm Bill is passed tonight or tomorrow there will be no farm legislation at the present session.

But two Democratic Senators — Lucas (Ill) and Russell (Ga) noted that the House-approved stopgap bill is ready for Senate action.

Lucas, Democratic whip, added that he understands the House would not even consider the long-range Senate plan.

But Aiken, with support from Senator Thye (R-Minn), held firm. He said the House Bill cannot be accepted by Senators. He added that the best and perhaps only way to reach a compromise is to pass the Senate Bill.

That also is the time set for a final meeting of the 32-member arrangements committee, headed by Walter Hallanan, West Virginia. Hallanan's group will approve the program for the convention which opens Monday. Drafting of the platform begins Thursday.

Whitla's committee will send the delegate disputes and recommendations to the entire National Committee of the party, meeting Thursday morning. The national committee sits as a jury in the contests.

"That is the issue I have made clear in my talks on this trip," the president said. "The issue is whether you want the special privilege boys to run this country or to keep it in the hands of the people you know you can trust and on whom you can depend."

The presidential special stopped in Gallup for 10 minutes for a change of crews on the trip east.

ministered either orally or by injection. It offers, Strauss said, a non-surgical treatment for a deep-seated lesion without damage to surrounding tissue. Once the radioactive iodine is concentrated in an infected part of the body, its radiation immediately attacks and destroys the malignant tissue.

Previously it has been used in the treatment of thyroid cancer because the iodine went to that part of the body immediately upon being administered. If the technique developed at Sloan-Kettering lives up to its advance expectations, it would be possible to use the treatment for other cancer-infected portions of the body.

None of the others, Lewis said, "opened their little mouths for fear they would say something displeasing to Mr. Moses or Mr. Love."

Lewis, asked about the southerners position at his news conference, and whether he would talk with them, told reporters: "They walked out, too, didn't they?"

Operator sources said a previous court order issued by Goldsborough is one reason the southern group is willing to continue bargaining. Goldsborough ordered Lewis to bargain with this group. The southerners believe the order applies to them, too.

Flood Crest Passes

PORTLAND, Ore., June 15 (INS) —The Columbia River's third and final major flood crest rolled out to sea today, leaving in its wake 40 known dead and a 1,500-mile trail of destruction.

U. S. Army engineers warned, however, that danger to lower Columbia River communities had not dissolved with the passing of the crest.

One Bill Advances

One of the largest annual money bills—which passed the House carrying $6,509,939,000 for the national military establishment-advanced a step on the Senate side.

Chairman Gurney (R-SD) said the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee completed hearings today and would begin deciding upon individual items at a closed session Wednesday afternoon.

The House cut $647,903,000 in cash from the President's budget requests and Gurney said a new $180,000,000 estimate had arrived since the House acted. It covers construction items approved by Congress since the House acted, he explained.

This bill carries operating funds for the Army and Air Force as well as Secretary of National Defense Forrestal and all agencies operating under him, other than the Navy and Marines.

Other big money bills awaiting Senate action are the $3,812,170,250 Navy Bill and the $6,125,700,000 Foreign Aid Measure.

Rep. Powell (D-NY) has served notice that he plans to offer 31 civil rights amendments in an attempt to abolish racial segregation in the armed services. This could delay the bill further.

Printing Firms Say ITU Failed In Bargaining

Baltimore Group Notifies NLRB

BALTIMORE, June 15 (AP) — A group of Baltimore Printing firms today asked the National Labor Relations Board to find that the International Typographical Union was responsible for the failure of its Baltimore Local No. 12 to bargain in good faith.

An NLRB examiner found several weeks ago that the local had refused to bargain with the Baltimore Graphic Arts League but he recommended that a similar complaint against the international be dropped.

The NLRB itself has not yet ruled in the case, one of the first in the country to test provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law which prohibit the closed shop.

The Graphic Arts League renewed its charges against the ITU today in a list of exceptions it took to the examiners report.

It said that all during negotiations on a new contract the local was "clearly an instrumentality of the ITU . . . the constitution and bylaws make the locals abjectly subservient to the ITU and give the ITU very effective disciplinary controls to insure that the locals jump everytime the ITU whip is snapped."

The local filed exceptions to the examiner's report and reiterated its argument that it had bargained in good faith. It pointed to a proposal that it would drop all the clauses to which the employers objected if they grant "certain economic conditions."

Sidney J. Barban, regional attorney for the NLRB, also took exceptions and insisted that the ITU be found guilty of failure to bargain in good faith.

The NLRB in Washington will consider the exceptions, as well as oral arguments still to be heard, before it makes a ruling in the case.

Our Gallivanting Chief Executive Is Pinned Down

The frantic accusations which President Truman has been hurling against the Congress on his political barnstorming in the West—at the expense of the National Treasury—have been answered by Senator Taft and Republican National Chairman Reece.

In his address at Philadelphia the senior Senator from Ohio did not enter into a contest of name calling with an unfortunate officeholder made desperate by fear of losing his job. Facts and reasoned argument were marshalled to show that Mr. Truman has not only been denouncing the present Congress. Underlying his words, whether he realizes it or not, is an attack on the institution of Congress itself.

Mr. Truman can think of no better campaign program than to revive the worst features of the New Deal—its reckless spending, its bureaucratic regimentation, its executive dictation. As Senator Taft says, the President "is blackguarding Congress at every whistle station in the West for the simple reason that Congress happens to differ with him in his whole philosophy of government."

The Truman resentments is due, specifically, to the fact that the Republican Congress has ignored the New Deal program which he laid before it last January. But why should Congress have done otherwise? It had been elected by the voters tired of wasteful spending and of dictation from the White House. Had the Eightieth Congress followed the Truman program it would have betrayed the trust of the majority of voters.

If Harry Truman, with the ideas he has been airing lately, were a man of great ability, or a popular idol, or even a shrewd politician, he might be a menace to the country But he has thrown away the popularity he could once claim as a well-meaning man of limited ability, caught in a job obviously too big for him. His curbstone attacks on Congress have not damaged the lawmaking branch of the Government. They have only lowered the prestige of his own office.

To review some of Mr. Truman's outbursts, a day after he had told a Butte audience that "Congress under Republican domination had virtually abolished the Labor Department," the head of the department, Lewis B. Schwellenbach, died at the end of a long illness which had deprived it of his personal supervision. Mr. Truman's statement—somewhat as usual—was wide of the facts. The Labor Department was stripped of most of its powers by President Roosevelt, who vested them in various alphabetical bureaus, pushed to passage the Wagner Labor Act with the same object, and held Frances Perkins in office year after year, chiefly because he would have alienated either the AFL or CIO had he named a representative of the other federation as her successor.

Through the New Deal, under both Roosevelt and Truman, the Department of Labor had but a shadowy role in all that story. Contrary to what the President alleges, passage of the Taft-Hartley Act, and the anticipated election of a Republican Administration, should bring back to the department legitimate and salutary powers of which it has long been deprived.

Mr. Truman flew off the handle again, this time with an improvisation as to the great Pacific Northwest flood. He will battle (this at Seattle) "every step of the way against private power lobbyists." He even speaks of "our (his Administration's) determination to build the dams and other structures needed" to control the nation's river basins.

Idle words! When had he ever manifested that "determination?" The thing that stands in the way everywhere against flood control is not "private power lobbyists," but the Government itself, with all its credit behind it, bending its energies to build power dams, forgetting that flood control must always be the paramount river policy—and seeing, as at Vanport, all the dreams of power-produced socialized wealth stultified almost in a minute by an overwhelming mass of unharanessed water.

Why in the same breath does Mr. Truman speak of power production and flood control—of "multiple purpose development?" He seems never to have got into his head the fact that a flood-dam is kept empty to draw off flood water, while a power-dam is kept full as possible in order to generate electric current.

Neither can do the other's work. Wherefore the dams of the Miami Conservancy carry a pledge, engraved in bronze tablets, that they shall never be used to create power. Behind that pledge are the lives of 360 persons, drowned in Ohio in 1913. The Pacific Northwest floods weigh in with a half hundred more.

Complete wedding ceremonies are never shown in motion pictures for fear, through a technicality, they might be termed real. Permanent marriages are not in Hollywood fashion.

No Slump In Sight

Business observers have discarded the possibility that the United States might have a depression comparable to that of 1921 following World War I. The comparable period has passed. And it is apparent that conditions are not at all similar. The government has far more power and is spending vastly larger sums. Organized labor now is in position to make its force felt in production and prices.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York says the food situation is so greatly improved that the worst phases of the inflationary spiral have run their course. A boom and bust is not now looked for. And many of the maladjustments which characterized the boom after the other war are much less serious now.

But the warning is issued that, because of rapid changes in this period, the economic outlook must be reappraised continually in the light of new developments. Higher government expenditures and continued high taxes make the monetary situation one to be watched.

It is still necessary to keep prices high to support a gigantic debt and a profligate government. What would happen to this set-up in case of a depression is obscure.

Things seem to be quieting down in China. Only 1,000,000 soldiers were engaged in recent fighting.

California man who found $22,000 in a rented house turned the money over to authorities. So glad to find a place to live, apparently, he wasn't interested in a little change.

KEEP WELL HOW TO

Sunburn Stoppers

Experience has taught most of us the folly of overexposure to the sun; unless a tan is acquired gradually, the skin is likely to be broiled. But many protective creams, ointments, and lotions are available which contain chemicals that absorb or reflect the ultra-violet. During the war a large number of preparations were introduced and some of the better types proved helpful to those who were shipwrecked or forced to remain in the sun for hours on end.

Dr. Van Dellen

The main ingredients of these products included quinine, naphthol disulfonic acids, esculine, and salicylic acid or one of its esters. But for practical purposes some were too messy or deteriorated rapidly when exposed to the sun. Even salicylic acid, which is frequently employed, proved irritating if used in concentrated form. As a result, research has continued and, of the newer compounds, para-aminobenzoic acid looks promising. This chemical is nontoxic and nonirritating to human skin, does not soil the clothing, and mixes well with various ointment bases and creams. But more important, it is capable of absorbing practically all of the rays that produce burning.

To test its efficacy, one group of investigators at the University of Chicago applied a mixture of 15 parts para-aminobenzoic acid in Ruggles' cream to certain areas of the skin of several adults and children, who were then exposed to ultra-violet light. The protected spots were able to withstand 50 to 100 times more irradiation before turning red than the unprotected regions. Furthermore, it was given to a group of 32 individuals who were sensitive to sunlight and to have suffered repeatedly in the past from severe sunburn. All reported absolute protection.

When sunbathing was combined with swimming, the cream had to be reapplied after leaving the water, because it washed off easily. It did not prevent freckles but was of benefit to two individuals in whom direct sunshine brought on or aggravated dermatitis. One of these patients had always developed cold sores after a trip to the beach but after rubbing the lips with this cream, no lesions ensued.

Cases have occurred in which hives appear over surfaces exposed to the sun. These lesions are similar to wheals encountered by persons sensitive to strawberries and are considered a form of allergy in which Old Sol is the culprit. Paraaminobenzoic acid was not helpful but recently a report was noted in which pyribenzamine seemed to be effective. This is one of the antihistaminic drugs used currently by mouth in the treatment of hay fever and other allergies. Rubin and colleagues who did this work, noticed a sixfold increase in tolerance to light, and when combined with daily irradiations under a sun lamp until the skin became well tanned, the tolerance was increased two hundredfold.

Studies along this line have revealed other information. Kurtin, Bierman, and Yontef found that they could inhibit redness induced by the sun in areas in which a watery solution of pyribenzamine was inserted into the skin electrically (iontophoresis). The conclusions from this work are not clear but a clew is offered that overexposure to ultraviolet is more harmful than good because certain cells may be damaged. The plan described gives promise of a new method of warding off sunburn.

TONGUE PATCHES

M. C. writes: What would cause white patches on the tongue that look like ringworm? One developed some months ago and now I have a second and they seem to be growing larger. There is no pain.

Reply

This is probably leucoplakia. As a rule, this condition results from chronic irritation, smoking, infected teeth, alcohol, or highly spiced or hot foods. When discovered early, the lesions often disappear if the irritants are removed. Removal by cauterization is frequently more satisfactory.

INEBRIATED THATCH

M. L. writes: Whenever I drink, the next morning my hair is so tangled that I can hardly comb it. Does the alcohol in the blood dry up the hair roots?

Reply

No. Drinking has many complications, but I doubt if this is one of them.

LIP BLEMISHES

S. D. writes: What is the treatment for cold sores, or fever blisters?

Reply

Numerous remedies are available. The most popular include ammoniated mercury ointment, tincture of benzoin, and spirits of camphor. In many instances, they disappear as quickly without treatment.

NOT ADVISED

J.P.Z. writes: Can any harm come from using daily powder for holding in false teeth?

Reply

Such preparations are rarely recommended as they may prove irritating. If the denture is loose, it may need relining or other repairs.

Gum Discoloration

C. C. writes: What causes blue gums?

REPLY

The condition may be due to pyorrhea, a vitamin C deficiency, or the ingestion of certion drugs. Occasionally, it occurs in lead, silver, mercury, zinc, or bismuth poisoning.

Taft Would Get GOP Nomination If Senate Republicans Had Their Way; Democrats Pay Tribute To His Honesty And Courage

Says DREW PEARSON

(Editor's note: On the eve of the Republican convention, Drew Pearson begins a series of columns diagnosing the prospective Republican candidates. Today's column discusses Senator Robert Taft.)

WASHINGTON, June 16—If the members of the U.S. Senate had their choice in selecting a Republican candidate for President, most of them would vote for Robert Alphonse Taft.

This is because they like him, consider him a square-shooter, a man who always keeps his word. And this goes for a lot of Democrats too. Even when they disagree with Taft, they pay tribute to his honesty and courage.

This, in a body where men live cheek-and-jowl, know each other's faults and failures, is no mean compliment.

It is also said in the Senate, even by those who like him, that: "Bob Taft is always right the second time."

And a friendly examination of his record indicates that this is true. Sometimes, in fact, Bob has had to wait for the third or fourth round to get right.

In 1943, for instance, Taft led the fight against the Roosevelt aid-to-education bill, and defeated it. This year he is leading the fight for it. In explanation he frankly states: "I had to give the problem a lot of study and saw there was a real need."

But it took five long years for Taft to wake up to that need—five years during which schoolhouses bulged, new war babies grew up, and the literacy rate in the U.S.A. dropped to a level comparable with Russia's.

Two years ago, also, Taft was leery of veterans housing. Now he has led the fight for long-range housing, including help for veterans housing. Two summers ago he was blasting the OPA and on July 1, 1946 flatly predicted: "The President's figures on possible price increases are a wild guess and for the most part dead wrong."

Prices, of course, have been going up ever since. And today, June 16, 1948, prices are much nearer the figure set up by Harry Truman than by Bob Taft.

In January, 1947, Harry Truman sent to Congress an economic recommendation for the nation, which didn't go down with the Republican Senate at all. But in September of the same year, Bob Taft, speaking before the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco, outlined the same general program.

Once again Bob Taft was right the second time.

Taft Appraises Self

It is doubtful if Taft had his own changing social and economic views in mind, when, back in 1939, he remarked to a friend:

"They say I've improved since I've come to the Senate, but I'm just the same as I ever was."

However, it is a fact that Taft has improved. He is still just as brusque, just as frank, just as inclined to step on people's toes—though with such open-faced honesty that you have to admire it. But Taft has changed when it comes to policies—and changed radically. He has become more liberal.

For a man of Taft's background this is a revolutionary change. For you have to remember that he springs from a family that put one grandfather in the Grant cabinet as secretary of war, sent another grandfather as ambassador to Russia, elected one President of the United States; and that the Taft family, owners of utility stocks, real estate and a prosperous Cincinnati newspaper, is one of the wealthiest in Ohio.

The tax laws that Taft sponsored while an Ohio state senator, for instance, in no way hurt the family fortunes. Nor have the tax revisions voted by the Republicans at this session of congress been much different. However, those who watch Taft daily detect a steady shift away from the rank reactionarism of House Republicans who would dump everything in the lap of big business, and predict that, one year hence, Taft will be proposing just as heavy high-bracket taxes as Harry Truman.

Once again, they say, Bob Taft will be right the second time.

Taft The Isolationist

In these difficult days, however, a President of the United States has to be right most of the time, the first time up to bat.

Especially he has to be right on foreign policy. And, although some isolationists still consider Taft right, the majority of the nation and Congress has voted him wrong on the most vital foreign problems facing the nation.

Before Pearl Harbor, for instance, Taft opposed every single major defense issue. If Congress had followed his leadership we would have been so miserably prepared that the Axis could hardly have been defeated.

Since the war, Taft has also been opposed to most of Vandenberg's foreign-affairs leadership. He was strong for curtailing the Marshall Plan—if passed at all. And even after the Russians moved into Czechoslovakia, the Republican leader of the Senate claimed that Truman was merely using the Russian bogey to stir up a war scare.

Anyone who looks up the written record can see that this was pretty much what the Senator was saying a few months before Pearl Harbor. "The situation," Taft told the nation in August, 1941, "looks infinitely safer."

All of which raises the question as to whether the American people, faced with urgent, unpostponable problems at home and abroad, can wait a year or two for the man in the White House to change his mind. This is something G.O.P. delegates to the Philadelphia convention will want to consider most carefully. If they don't, then the people who do the final selecting next November will be faced with the difficult problem of choosing between the present incumbent who makes snap decisions — sometimes wrong—and a man who waits a couple of years to be right—the second time.

Taft Merry-Go-Round

Vivacious Martha Taft, a great political asset to her husband, is sometimes given credit for the Senator's isolation. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Washington's high priestess of isolation and a close friend of the Tafts, sometimes hints that she does a little isolationist proselytizing through Martha . . . Though drifting toward the liberal side, Taft still has an undying antipathy for New Dealers. Perhaps it's the trade mark. Though he has adopted some of their ideas, he dislikes their brand. To this is attributed his battle against Atomic Energy Chairman David Lilienthal, former administrator of the Tennessee Valley Authority. . . . Taft even went up to New Haven to vote against Tom Emerson as a member of the Yale faculty, because he considered Emerson a New Dealer. . . . Taft has a well-oiled political machine in the south, has helped keep Mississippi's negro delegates in line by giving a job in the Senate post office to the son of Perry Howard, negro boss of Mississippi's G.O.P.

Much Of Vandenberg Support Comes From Outside His Party

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

If the G.O.P. thinks the country wants to continue the "bi-partisan foreign policy," Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg is the logical nominee for the Presidency.

He was selected by President Roosevelt to attend the San Francisco Conference that drafted the United Nations Charter. He has been a delegate to London and Paris. He is the G.O.P. spokesman for the Roosevelt-Truman-Byrnes-Marshall foreign policy, or polities.

Much of the support for his nomination comes from sources outside his party. In this respect, the campaign to nominate him somewhat resembles the pre-convention campaign for Willkie in 1940.

Helped Defeat League of Nations

As a newspaper editor, Mr. Vandenberg helped defeat the League of Nations. In 1926, he wrote a book strongly supporting the historic non-intervention policy of all Presidents prior to Wilson. Later, in the Senate, he voted against the peacetime draft before Pearl Harbor, against the repeal of the arms embargo; and was a close friend of Borah of Idaho, who was for years the strongest defender of the Washington-Jefferson policy.

But, on January 10, 1945, Mr. Vandenberg reversed his former position. He proposed that the United States, Britain, France, and Russia make a treaty of mutual defense against any new aggression by Germany. He suggested that the President should "have instant power to act" by sending ships and troops, without consulting Congress, or a declaration of war.

This speech made him a world figure. But he, too, counted his Russians before they were hatched, as Roosevelt and Hull had done. Vandenberg thought his offer to Russia would be accepted as a military substitute for her conquest of satellite countries. The offer was refused. Russia moved on.

The next year, Vandenberg was re-elected to the Senate. He carried every county in Michigan. His Democratic opponent reported that not one penny of his help came to him from the National Democratic Committee.

The Senator now sponsors the Vandenberg Resolution expressing the "determination" of the United States "to exercise the right of individual, or collective, self-defense." This means that we could regard any attack or anybody, anywhere, as an attack on us, and go to war on our own. This is interpreted as a device to get around a veto in the Security Council of the United Nations. In short, if the Security Council refuses to fight, we will be free to fight anywhere. If this interpretation is correct, it seems to mark the end of the Senator's faith in the United Nations, which he has called "this new argosy of peace upon the seas of time." He had told the Senate, previously, that the "world's only hope . . . is to make the United Nations work," and said Russia was within its legal rights in vetoing action in a dispute involving Lebanon and Syria.

Voted Against NRA, Wagner Act

President Truman has taken unilateral action in Greece, outside of the United Nations. It can be argued that Russia's abuse of the veto requires further steps outside the U.N. But this much be a great disappointment to those who have pinned their hopes on collective action by the United Nations, and not outside it.

Vandenberg voted against N.R.A., the Wagner Act, A.A.A., T.V.A., Passamaquoddy, the Florida Ship Canal, etc On the other hand, he has favored F.E.P.C., anti-lynch, and anti-poll tax. On domestic affairs, he would make a candidate acceptable to both the right and left wings of his party. The real question concerning him is: Does his party want a "bi-partisan foreign policy" which, once agreed upon by a few men, it becomes impious to discuss?

As foreign policy now controls an increasing portion of our domestic economy, foreign aid, price controls, tariffs, taxes, etc., many Republicans think it is not immune from the ancient right of free speech. Has it, in fact, become unpatriotic to question the necessity of any expenditure by the State Department?

Dewey-Taft Strength Is About Equal For First Two Ballots

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 15—Within the next ten days the game of political maneuvering that goes on behind the scenes among the delegates to a national convention will disclose the difference between actual claims that have substance and wishful thinking by the friends and supporters of the leading candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.

At this writing, Governor Dewey of New York and Senator Taft of Ohio have approximately equal strength among the delegates for the first ballot or two. The question of how solid or substantial is the strength of each of these two candidates cannot be told in advance by a canvass of delegates. The customary pledges of first and second choices are so hedged with qualifications that it may be said that, as of today, there is no certainty about the outcome at all.

The danger to the Taft forces is that inside their ranks are several influential men who really would like to nominate Senator Bricker. The utmost loyalty to Taft is professed but nevertheless there are indications of a desire to try out Bricker if Taft fails.

Taft vs. Bricker

It is natural for these conservatives to want to hold the Taft strength intact if the senior Ohio senator cannot make the grade in the first few ballots. Logic, however, would seem to bear out the assertion that if Taft can't win the nomination, then certainly someone more conservative than he—namely, the junior senator from Ohio, John Bricker—might have an even more difficult time corralling a majority.

Once the Taft strength starts to disintegrate — assuming that the Bricker enthusiasts begin to pull it apart—there are chances that some of the Taft group will want to go to Dewey rather than to a "nationalist." Even though the number may be small, it could result in a substantial increase for Governor Dewey and start the "bandwagon" going for the New York candidate.

Only if, after several ballots, the Taft-Bricker strength doesn't go over to the Dewey side and the Stassen delegates remain firm against Dewey will it be necessary for the convention to try a compromise, with Senator Vandenberg of Michigan as the most likely beneficiary.

As of today Governor Dewey has strength which he didn't have a month ago. Victory in the Oregon primary boosted his stock. But whether he has enough to win support from other delegations now on the fence remains to be seen.

The two points of hesitancy about Dewey are these: First, he has given an impression of opportunism which makes many conservatives fear his administration might become a Republican edition of the New Deal, and second, he is not as strong on the international side as either Vandenberg or Stassen.

Second Point Might Help

The second of these two points might help Dewey, as against Vandenberg, with the "isolationists" or "nationalists" of the kind who are behind the Bricker candidacy. In a swing toward Dewey by the delegates who think he would be likely to approve less money for European aid than Vandenberg or Stassen, there is a chance that enough votes might be obtained by the New York governor to win the nomination. At the moment his chances of winning the nomination are at least equal to those of anybody else.

Much Talk of Martin

There is much talk of Speaker Martin as a "dark horse." This is based on the theory that, if neither Taft nor Bricker can make the grade, the convention could be stampeded for the Speaker of the House.

Many of the "old line" regulars in the Republican party are living in the past if they think the 1948 convention will nominate either an "isolationist" or a "nationalist" or an an ultra-conservative candidate. The convention delegates will lean more toward the "internationalist" than the "Nationalist" side. The primaries have indicated such a trend. The Stassen vote reflects a considerable internationalism in the party. So does the strength of the Vandenberg group.

The former Minnesota governor could exercise a veto over Taft or Bricker or Martin by holding his delegates together until a nominee is chosen who is satisfactory on international issues. A Vandenberg-Stassen ticket might be hard for the "nationalists" to accept but it may be a natural reaction from maneuvers to nominate a "nationalist." The Stassen role may prove most influential and decisive.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

FEW Presidents have quite faced the situation that finds Harry Truman desperate to the point of hysteria. For only a hysterical or dishonest man would have described the 80th Congress as the worst in American history. After all, it has not been a "rubber stamp" Congress of which servility Harry Truman partook as a member of the Senate. It has a record of hard work, of constructive legislation, of great decisions on domestic and international policy.

Harry Truman's despair does not arise from the prospect of defeat by the Republicans as much as from a knowledge that his own party has turned upon him. He has lost the confidence of his own associates. In fact, he has, in some matters, acted with such infantile petulance that no one can explain what he has hoped to accomplish.

He is making an issue, a rallying point, and finding none at hand, hopes to use Congress as a whipping boy. He apparently will say anything, like his talking about what a good guy his pal, Joe Stalin, is.

No matter what we think of Joe, he is the head of a state and it sounds cheap and vulgar for the President of the United States to refer to the Prime Minister of another state in the language Truman used for Stalin. I am sure it did not take one vote from Wallace.

This business of not permitting Democratic state leaders to travel on his train arises from a fiction that this is an inspection tour by the President of the United States, not a political tour by a Democratic aspirant for the Presidential nomination.

The reason for the fiction is money. If President Truman, as President, is traveling, the expenses are paid out of the Treasury of the United States. Mr. Truman has no private means; his salary as President is altogether inadequate, particularly after income tax deductions.

The Democratic National Committee is as financially flat as it is intellectually and politically. So Mr. Truman could only have taken his trip at the people's expense, as his predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, had done before him with less justification.

Also, there is the matter of radio time. As President of the United States, Mr. Truman is entitled to many courtesies; as a political aspirant, he is entitled to what he can get, the same as anybody else.

So Mr. Truman had to keep the Democratic State Chairmen and similar fry off the train; otherwise the trip would have been too obviously politically. This requires careful management at this time. Mr. Roosevelt made these inspection tours without any moral sense of propriety. But then, Mr. Roosevelt had the advantage of a war to cover up for him and to provide a censorship for reasons of "national security." Nothing like that is available for Harry Truman. So he not only kept the politicians off the train, but as I understand it, he kept them off the arrangement committees in the various cities.

For instance, Lester Loble, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Montana, is reported to have said concerning the visit to Montana:

"I have not changed my opinion as previously stated. This reception was arranged by the Republicans. That's all I have to say."

That is undoubtedly correct because when I was in Butte, some of my friends, ardent Republicans, were preparing for the visit of the President of the United States. Without them, it is doubtful whether the greeting would have been a success, but how does that help the Democratic leader of the state who is faced with the necessity of trying not only to elect President Truman, but to re-elect Senator Murray, whose chances are practically nil? Harry Truman's visit to Montana practically guaranteed the local Republican candidates their election.

Perhaps that is why in his nonpolitical way, Harry Truman made a special appeal for Senator James E. Murray and Congressman Mike Mansfield. Of course, there was no politics in that, only the President reminiscing about old friends. Nobody can naturally be so crude.

If you happen to have six billion dollars in loose cash, I know where you can pick up a real bargain.

Yes sir, that's how much stock the War Assets Administration has left on its shelves and if you run over there fast, you stand a good chance to make yourself a few million dollars for the day.

Jess Larson, the administrator, wants to close up his shop and this is by way of being an advertisement, naming a few of the handy items he has around and my suggestions for using them.

First, he has hundreds of thousands of WAC girdles which are just dying to get their laces on somebody. Mr. Greenstreet, are you listening?

Our Gallivanting Chief Executive Is Pinned Down

The frantic accusations which President Truman has been hurling against the Congress on his political barnstorming in the West—at the expense of the National Treasury—have been answered by Senator Taft and Republican National Chairman Reece.

In his address at Philadelphia the senior Senator from Ohio did not enter into a contest of name calling with an unfortunate officeholder made desperate by fear of losing his job. Facts and reasoned argument were marshalled to show that Mr. Truman has not only been denouncing the present Congress. Underlying his words, whether he realizes it or not, is an attack on the institution of Congress itself.

Mr. Truman can think of no better campaign program than to revive the worst features of the New Deal—its reckless spending, its bureaucratic regimentation, its executive dictation. As Senator Taft says, the President "is blackguarding Congress at every whistle station in the West for the simple reason that Congress happens to differ with him in his whole philosophy of government."

The Truman resentments is due, specifically, to the fact that the Republican Congress has ignored the New Deal program which he laid before it last January. But why should Congress have done otherwise? It had been elected by the voters tired of wasteful spending and of dictation from the White House. Had the Eightieth Congress followed the Truman program it would have betrayed the trust of the majority of voters.

If Harry Truman, with the ideas he has been airing lately, were a man of great ability, or a popular idol, or even a shrewd politician, he might be a menace to the country But he has thrown away the popularity he could once claim as a well-meaning man of limited ability, caught in a job obviously too big for him. His curbstone attacks on Congress have not damaged the lawmaking branch of the Government. They have only lowered the prestige of his own office.

To review some of Mr. Truman's outbursts, a day after he had told a Butte audience that "Congress under Republican domination had virtually abolished the Labor Department," the head of the department, Lewis B. Schwellenbach, died at the end of a long illness which had deprived it of his personal supervision. Mr. Truman's statement—somewhat as usual—was wide of the facts. The Labor Department was stripped of most of its powers by President Roosevelt, who vested them in various alphabetical bureaus, pushed to passage the Wagner Labor Act with the same object, and held Frances Perkins in office year after year, chiefly because he would have alienated either the AFL or CIO had he named a representative of the other federation as her successor.

Through the New Deal, under both Roosevelt and Truman, the Department of Labor had but a shadowy role in all that story. Contrary to what the President alleges, passage of the Taft-Hartley Act, and the anticipated election of a Republican Administration, should bring back to the department legitimate and salutary powers of which it has long been deprived.

Mr. Truman flew off the handle again, this time with an improvisation as to the great Pacific Northwest flood. He will battle (this at Seattle) "every step of the way against private power lobbyists." He even speaks of "our (his Administration's) determination to build the dams and other structures needed" to control the nation's river basins.

Idle words! When had he ever manifested that "determination?" The thing that stands in the way everywhere against flood control is not "private power lobbyists," but the Government itself, with all its credit behind it, bending its energies to build power dams, forgetting that flood control must always be the paramount river policy—and seeing, as at Vanport, all the dreams of power-produced socialized wealth stultified almost in a minute by an overwhelming mass of unharanessed water.

Why in the same breath does Mr. Truman speak of power production and flood control—of "multiple purpose development?" He seems never to have got into his head the fact that a flood-dam is kept empty to draw off flood water, while a power-dam is kept full as possible in order to generate electric current.

Neither can do the other's work. Wherefore the dams of the Miami Conservancy carry a pledge, engraved in bronze tablets, that they shall never be used to create power. Behind that pledge are the lives of 360 persons, drowned in Ohio in 1913. The Pacific Northwest floods weigh in with a half hundred more.

Complete wedding ceremonies are never shown in motion pictures for fear, through a technicality, they might be termed real. Permanent marriages are not in Hollywood fashion.

No Slump In Sight

Business observers have discarded the possibility that the United States might have a depression comparable to that of 1921 following World War I. The comparable period has passed. And it is apparent that conditions are not at all similar. The government has far more power and is spending vastly larger sums. Organized labor now is in position to make its force felt in production and prices.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York says the food situation is so greatly improved that the worst phases of the inflationary spiral have run their course. A boom and bust is not now looked for. And many of the maladjustments which characterized the boom after the other war are much less serious now.

But the warning is issued that, because of rapid changes in this period, the economic outlook must be reappraised continually in the light of new developments. Higher government expenditures and continued high taxes make the monetary situation one to be watched.

It is still necessary to keep prices high to support a gigantic debt and a profligate government. What would happen to this set-up in case of a depression is obscure.

Things seem to be quieting down in China. Only 1,000,000 soldiers were engaged in recent fighting.

California man who found $22,000 in a rented house turned the money over to authorities. So glad to find a place to live, apparently, he wasn't interested in a little change.

Sunburn Stoppers

Experience has taught most of us the folly of overexposure to the sun; unless a tan is acquired gradually, the skin is likely to be broiled. But many protective creams, ointments, and lotions are available which contain chemicals that absorb or reflect the ultra-violet. During the war a large number of preparations were introduced and some of the better types proved helpful to those who were shipwrecked or forced to remain in the sun for hours on end.

Dr. Van Dellen

The main ingredients of these products included quinine, naphthol disulfonic acids, esculine, and salicylic acid or one of its esters. But for practical purposes some were too messy or deteriorated rapidly when exposed to the sun. Even salicylic acid, which is frequently employed, proved irritating if used in concentrated form. As a result, research has continued and, of the newer compounds, para-aminobenzoic acid looks promising. This chemical is nontoxic and nonirritating to human skin, does not soil the clothing, and mixes well with various ointment bases and creams. But more important, it is capable of absorbing practically all of the rays that produce burning.

To test its efficacy, one group of investigators at the University of Chicago applied a mixture of 15 parts para-aminobenzoic acid in Ruggles' cream to certain areas of the skin of several adults and children, who were then exposed to ultra-violet light. The protected spots were able to withstand 50 to 100 times more irradiation before turning red than the unprotected regions. Furthermore, it was given to a group of 32 individuals who were sensitive to sunlight and to have suffered repeatedly in the past from severe sunburn. All reported absolute protection.

When sunbathing was combined with swimming, the cream had to be reapplied after leaving the water, because it washed off easily. It did not prevent freckles but was of benefit to two individuals in whom direct sunshine brought on or aggravated dermatitis. One of these patients had always developed cold sores after a trip to the beach but after rubbing the lips with this cream, no lesions ensued.

Cases have occurred in which hives appear over surfaces exposed to the sun. These lesions are similar to wheals encountered by persons sensitive to strawberries and are considered a form of allergy in which Old Sol is the culprit. Para-aminobenzoic acid was not helpful but recently a report was noted in which pyribenzamine seemed to be effective. This is one of the antihistaminic drugs used currently by mouth in the treatment of hay fever and other allergies. Rubin and colleagues who did this work, noticed a sixfold increase in tolerance to light, and when combined with daily irradiations under a sun lamp until the skin became well tanned, the tolerance was increased two hundredfold.

Studies along this line have revealed other information. Kurtin, Bierman, and Yontef found that they could inhibit redness induced by the sun in areas in which a watery solution of pyribenzamine was inserted into the skin electrically (iontophoresis). The conclusions from this work are not clear but a clew is offered that overexposure to ultraviolet is more harmful than good because certain cells may be damaged. The plan described gives promise of a new method of warding off sunburn.

TONGUE PATCHES

M. C. writes: What would cause white patches on the tongue that look like ringworm? One developed some months ago and now I have a second and they seem to be growing larger. There is no pain.

Reply

This is probably leucoplakia. As a rule, this condition results from chronic irritation, smoking, infected teeth, alcohol, or highly spiced or hot foods. When discovered early, the lesions often disappear if the irritants are removed. Removal by cauterization is frequently more satisfactory.

INEBRIATED THATCH

M. L. writes: Whenever I drink, the next morning my hair is so tangled that I can hardly comb it. Does the alcohol in the blood dry up the hair roots?

Reply

No. Drinking has many complications, but I doubt if this is one of them.

LIP BLEMISHES

S. D. writes: What is the treatment for cold sores, or fever blisters?

Reply

Numerous remedies are available. The most popular include ammoniated mercury ointment, tincture of benzoin, and spirits of camphor. In many instances, they disappear as quickly without treatment.

NOT ADVISED

J.P.Z. writes: Can any harm come from using daily powder for holding in false teeth?

Reply

Such preparations are rarely recommended as they may prove irritating. If the denture is loose, it may need relining or other repairs.

Gum Discoloration

C. C. writes: What causes blue gums?

REPLY

The condition may be due to pyorrhea, a vitamin C deficiency, or the ingestion of certion drugs. Occasionally, it occurs in lead, silver, mercury, zinc, or bismuth poisoning.

Taft Would Get GOP Nomination If Senate Republicans Had Their Way; Democrats Pay Tribute To His Honesty And Courage

Says DREW PEARSON

(Editor's note: On the eve of the Republican convention, Drew Pearson begins a series of columns diagnosing the prospective Republican candidates. Today's column discusses Senator Robert Taft.)

WASHINGTON, June 16—If the members of the U.S. Senate had their choice in selecting a Republican candidate for President, most of them would vote for Robert Alphonse Taft.

This is because they like him, consider him a square-shooter, a man who always keeps his word. And this goes for a lot of Democrats too. Even when they disagree with Taft, they pay tribute to his honesty and courage.

This, in a body where men live cheek-and-jowl, know each other's faults and failures, is no mean compliment.

It is also said in the Senate, even by those who like him, that: "Bob Taft is always right the second time."

And a friendly examination of his record indicates that this is true. Sometimes, in fact, Bob has had to wait for the third or fourth round to get right.

In 1943, for instance, Taft led the fight against the Roosevelt aid-to-education bill, and defeated it. This year he is leading the fight for it. In explanation he frankly states: "I had to give the problem a lot of study and saw there was a real need."

But it took five long years for Taft to wake up to that need—five years during which schoolhouses bulged, new war babies grew up, and the literacy rate in the U.S.A. dropped to a level comparable with Russia's.

Two years ago, also, Taft was leery of veterans housing. Now he has led the fight for long-range housing, including help for veterans housing. Two summers ago he was blasting the OPA and on July 1, 1946 flatly predicted: "The President's figures on possible price increases are a wild guess and for the most part dead wrong."

Prices, of course, have been going up ever since. And today, June 16, 1948, prices are much nearer the figure set up by Harry Truman than by Bob Taft.

In January, 1947, Harry Truman sent to Congress an economic recommendation for the nation, which didn't go down with the Republican Senate at all. But in September of the same year, Bob Taft, speaking before the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco, outlined the same general program.

Once again Bob Taft was right the second time.

Taft Appraises Self

It is doubtful if Taft had his own changing social and economic views in mind, when, back in 1939, he remarked to a friend:

"They say I've improved since I've come to the Senate, but I'm just the same as I ever was."

However, it is a fact that Taft has improved. He is still just as brusque, just as frank, just as inclined to step on people's toes—though with such open-faced honesty that you have to admire it. But Taft has changed when it comes to policies—and changed radically. He has become more liberal.

For a man of Taft's background this is a revolutionary change. For you have to remember that he springs from a family that put one grandfather in the Grant cabinet as secretary of war, sent another grandfather as ambassador to Russia, elected one President of the United States; and that the Taft family, owners of utility stocks, real estate and a prosperous Cincinnati newspaper, is one of the wealthiest in Ohio.

The tax laws that Taft sponsored while an Ohio state senator, for instance, in no way hurt the family fortunes. Nor have the tax revisions voted by the Republicans at this session of congress been much different. However, those who watch Taft daily detect a steady shift away from the rank reactionarism of House Republicans who would dump everything in the lap of big business, and predict that, one year hence, Taft will be proposing just as heavy high-bracket taxes as Harry Truman.

Once again, they say, Bob Taft will be right the second time.

Taft The Isolationist

In these difficult days, however, a President of the United States has to be right most of the time, the first time up to bat.

Especially he has to be right on foreign policy. And, although some isolationists still consider Taft right, the majority of the nation and Congress has voted him wrong on the most vital foreign problems facing the nation.

Before Pearl Harbor, for instance, Taft opposed every single major defense issue. If Congress had followed his leadership we would have been so miserably prepared that the Axis could hardly have been defeated.

Since the war, Taft has also been opposed to most of Vandenberg's foreign-affairs leadership. He was strong for curtailing the Marshall Plan—if passed at all. And even after the Russians moved into Czechoslovakia, the Republican leader of the Senate claimed that Truman was merely using the Russian bogey to stir up a war scare.

Anyone who looks up the written record can see that this was pretty much what the Senator was saying a few months before Pearl Harbor. "The situation," Taft told the nation in August, 1941, "looks infinitely safer."

All of which raises the question as to whether the American people, faced with urgent, unpostponable problems at home and abroad, can wait a year or two for the man in the White House to change his mind. This is something G.O.P. delegates to the Philadelphia convention will want to consider most carefully. If they don't, then the people who do the final selecting next November will be faced with the difficult problem of choosing between the present incumbent who makes snap decisions — sometimes wrong—and a man who waits a couple of years to be right—the second time.

Taft Merry-Go-Round

Vivacious Martha Taft, a great political asset to her husband, is sometimes given credit for the Senator's isolation. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Washington's high priestess of isolation and a close friend of the Tafts, sometimes hints that she does a little isolationist proselytizing through Martha . . . Though drifting toward the liberal side, Taft still has an undying antipathy for New Dealers. Perhaps it's the trade mark. Though he has adopted some of their ideas, he dislikes their brand. To this is attributed his battle against Atomic Energy Chairman David Lilienthal, former administrator of the Tennessee Valley Authority. . . . Taft even went up to New Haven to vote against Tom Emerson as a member of the Yale faculty, because he considered Emerson a New Dealer. . . . Taft has a well-oiled political machine in the south, has helped keep Mississippi's negro delegates in line by giving a job in the Senate post office to the son of Perry Howard, negro boss of Mississippi's G.O.P.

Much Of Vandenberg Support Comes From Outside His Party

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

If the G.O.P. thinks the country wants to continue the "bi-partisan foreign policy," Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg is the logical nominee for the Presidency.

He was selected by President Roosevelt to attend the San Francisco Conference that drafted the United Nations Charter. He has been a delegate to London and Paris. He is the G.O.P. spokesman for the Roosevelt-Truman-Byrnes-Marshall foreign policy, or polities.

Much of the support for his nomination comes from sources outside his party. In this respect, the campaign to nominate him somewhat resembles the pre-convention campaign for Willkie in 1940.

Helped Defeat League of Nations

As a newspaper editor, Mr. Vandenberg helped defeat the League of Nations. In 1926, he wrote a book strongly supporting the historic non-intervention policy of all Presidents prior to Wilson. Later, in the Senate, he voted against the peacetime draft before Pearl Harbor, against the repeal of the arms embargo; and was a close friend of Borah of Idaho, who was for years the strongest defender of the Washington-Jefferson policy.

But, on January 10, 1945, Mr. Vandenberg reversed his former position. He proposed that the United States, Britain, France, and Russia make a treaty of mutual defense against any new aggression by Germany. He suggested that the President should "have instant power to act" by sending ships and troops, without consulting Congress, or a declaration of war.

This speech made him a world figure. But he, too, counted his Russians before they were hatched, as Roosevelt and Hull had done. Vandenberg thought his offer to Russia would be accepted as a military substitute for her conquest of satellite countries. The offer was refused. Russia moved on.

The next year, Vandenberg was re-elected to the Senate. He carried every county in Michigan. His Democratic opponent reported that not one penny of his help came to him from the National Democratic Committee.

The Senator now sponsors the Vandenberg Resolution expressing the "determination" of the United States "to exercise the right of individual, or collective, self-defense." This means that we could regard any attack or anybody, anywhere, as an attack on us, and go to war on our own. This is interpreted as a device to get around a veto in the Security Council of the United Nations. In short, if the Security Council refuses to fight, we will be free to fight anywhere. If this interpretation is correct, it seems to mark the end of the Senator's faith in the United Nations, which he has called "this new argosy of peace upon the seas of time." He had told the Senate, previously, that the "world's only hope . . . is to make the United Nations work," and said Russia was within its legal rights in vetoing action in a dispute involving Lebanon and Syria.

Voted Against NRA, Wagner Act

President Truman has taken unilateral action in Greece, outside of the United Nations. It can be argued that Russia's abuse of the veto requires further steps outside the U.N. But this much be a great disappointment to those who have pinned their hopes on collective action by the United Nations, and not outside it.

Vandenberg voted against N.R.A., the Wagner Act, A.A.A., T.V.A., Passamaquoddy, the Florida Ship Canal, etc On the other hand, he has favored F.E.P.C., anti-lynch, and anti-poll tax. On domestic affairs, he would make a candidate acceptable to both the right and left wings of his party. The real question concerning him is: Does his party want a "bi-partisan foreign policy" which, once agreed upon by a few men, it becomes impious to discuss?

As foreign policy now controls an increasing portion of our domestic economy, foreign aid, price controls, tariffs, taxes, etc., many Republicans think it is not immune from the ancient right of free speech. Has it, in fact, become unpatriotic to question the necessity of any expenditure by the State Department?

Dewey-Taft Strength Is About Equal For First Two Ballots

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 15—Within the next ten days the game of political maneuvering that goes on behind the scenes among the delegates to a national convention will disclose the difference between actual claims that have substance and wishful thinking by the friends and supporters of the leading candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.

At this writing, Governor Dewey of New York and Senator Taft of Ohio have approximately equal strength among the delegates for the first ballot or two. The question of how solid or substantial is the strength of each of these two candidates cannot be told in advance by a canvass of delegates. The customary pledges of first and second choices are so hedged with qualifications that it may be said that, as of today, there is no certainty about the outcome at all.

The danger to the Taft forces is that inside their ranks are several influential men who really would like to nominate Senator Bricker. The utmost loyalty to Taft is professed but nevertheless there are indications of a desire to try out Bricker if Taft fails.

Taft vs. Bricker

It is natural for these conservatives to want to hold the Taft strength intact if the senior Ohio senator cannot make the grade in the first few ballots. Logic, however, would seem to bear out the assertion that if Taft can't win the nomination, then certainly someone more conservative than he—namely, the junior senator from Ohio, John Bricker—might have an even more difficult time corralling a majority.

Once the Taft strength starts to disintegrate — assuming that the Bricker enthusiasts begin to pull it apart—there are chances that some of the Taft group will want to go to Dewey rather than to a "nationalist." Even though the number may be small, it could result in a substantial increase for Governor Dewey and start the "bandwagon" going for the New York candidate.

Only if, after several ballots, the Taft-Bricker strength doesn't go over to the Dewey side and the Stassen delegates remain firm against Dewey will it be necessary for the convention to try a compromise, with Senator Vandenberg of Michigan as the most likely beneficiary.

As of today Governor Dewey has strength which he didn't have a month ago. Victory in the Oregon primary boosted his stock. But whether he has enough to win support from other delegations now on the fence remains to be seen.

The two points of hesitancy about Dewey are these: First, he has given an impression of opportunism which makes many conservatives fear his administration might become a Republican edition of the New Deal, and second, he is not as strong on the international side as either Vandenberg or Stassen.

Second Point Might Help

The second of these two points might help Dewey, as against Vandenberg, with the "isolationists" or "nationalists" of the kind who are behind the Bricker candidacy. In a swing toward Dewey by the delegates who think he would be likely to approve less money for European aid than Vandenberg or Stassen, there is a chance that enough votes might be obtained by the New York governor to win the nomination. At the moment his chances of winning the nomination are at least equal to those of anybody else.

Much Talk of Martin

There is much talk of Speaker Martin as a "dark horse." This is based on the theory that, if neither Taft nor Bricker can make the grade, the convention could be stampeded for the Speaker of the House.

Many of the "old line" regulars in the Republican party are living in the past if they think the 1948 convention will nominate either an "isolationist" or a "nationalist" or an an ultra-conservative candidate. The convention delegates will lean more toward the "internationalist" than the "Nationalist" side. The primaries have indicated such a trend. The Stassen vote reflects a considerable internationalism in the party. So does the strength of the Vandenberg group.

The former Minnesota governor could exercise a veto over Taft or Bricker or Martin by holding his delegates together until a nominee is chosen who is satisfactory on international issues. A Vandenberg-Stassen ticket might be hard for the "nationalists" to accept but it may be a natural reaction from maneuvers to nominate a "nationalist." The Stassen role may prove most influential and decisive.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

FEW Presidents have quite faced the situation that finds Harry Truman desperate to the point of hysteria. For only a hysterical or dishonest man would have described the 80th Congress as the worst in American history. After all, it has not been a "rubber stamp" Congress of which servility Harry Truman partook as a member of the Senate. It has a record of hard work, of constructive legislation, of great decisions on domestic and international policy.

Harry Truman's despair does not arise from the prospect of defeat by the Republicans as much as from a knowledge that his own party has turned upon him. He has lost the confidence of his own associates. In fact, he has, in some matters, acted with such infantile petulance that no one can explain what he has hoped to accomplish.

He is making an issue, a rallying point, and finding none at hand, hopes to use Congress as a whipping boy. He apparently will say anything, like his talking about what a good guy his pal, Joe Stalin, is.

No matter what we think of Joe, he is the head of a state and it sounds cheap and vulgar for the President of the United States to refer to the Prime Minister of another state in the language Truman used for Stalin. I am sure it did not take one vote from Wallace.

This business of not permitting Democratic state leaders to travel on his train arises from a fiction that this is an inspection tour by the President of the United States, not a political tour by a Democratic aspirant for the Presidential nomination.

The reason for the fiction is money. If President Truman, as President, is traveling, the expenses are paid out of the Treasury of the United States. Mr. Truman has no private means; his salary as President is altogether inadequate, particularly after income tax deductions.

The Democratic National Committee is as financially flat as it is intellectually and politically. So Mr. Truman could only have taken his trip at the people's expense, as his predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, had done before him with less justification.

Also, there is the matter of radio time. As President of the United States, Mr. Truman is entitled to many courtesies; as a political aspirant, he is entitled to what he can get, the same as anybody else.

So Mr. Truman had to keep the Democratic State Chairmen and similar fry off the train; otherwise the trip would have been too obviously politically. This requires careful management at this time. Mr. Roosevelt made these inspection tours without any moral sense of propriety. But then, Mr. Roosevelt had the advantage of a war to cover up for him and to provide a censorship for reasons of "national security." Nothing like that is available for Harry Truman. So he not only kept the politicians off the train, but as I understand it, he kept them off the arrangement committees in the various cities.

For instance, Lester Loble, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Montana, is reported to have said concerning the visit to Montana:

"I have not changed my opinion as previously stated. This reception was arranged by the Republicans. That's all I have to say."

That is undoubtedly correct because when I was in Butte, some of my friends, ardent Republicans, were preparing for the visit of the President of the United States. Without them, it is doubtful whether the greeting would have been a success, but how does that help the Democratic leader of the state who is faced with the necessity of trying not only to elect President Truman, but to re-elect Senator Murray, whose chances are practically nil? Harry Truman's visit to Montana practically guaranteed the local Republican candidates their election.

Perhaps that is why in his nonpolitical way, Harry Truman made a special appeal for Senator James E. Murray and Congressman Mike Mansfield. Of course, there was no politics in that, only the President reminiscing about old friends. Nobody can naturally be so crude.

If you happen to have six billion dollars in loose cash, I know where you can pick up a real bargain.

Yes sir, that's how much stock the War Assets Administration has left on its shelves and if you run over there fast, you stand a good chance to make yourself a few million dollars for the day.

Jess Larson, the administrator, wants to close up his shop and this is by way of being an advertisement, naming a few of the handy items he has around and my suggestions for using them.

First, he has hundreds of thousands of WAC girdles which are just dying to get their laces on somebody. Mr. Greenstreet, are you listening?

For the art collectors Jess has a stock pile of silver finger bowls. I understand these were designed for admirals but a practical shopper might turn one into a bird bath for a rich canary.

Dear Doctor Menninger:

If it is true that hate can be as binding an attachment as love, then the following case history belongs in your files:

Billy Rose

Back in the '20's, I occasionally patronized an East Side coffee-house known as the Caledonia Social Club. One of its steady customers was "Once-Over-Lightly," a somewhat reformed pickpocket, and another was Dr. Slowly, an unreformed dentist.

For years, Lightly and Slowly played cards for high stakes, but never with each other. However, after each card session they would adjourn to a corner table to play chess, and the psychiatric overtones of their vituperations and name-calling were worthy of Kraft-Ebbing's attention.

Lightly, who had a bitter and mordant wit, did most of the insulting. "Hurry up an' play, awreddy," he would screech at Slowly. "Ya fodda steals from da blind an' ya mudda eats dog food, so it's no wonder ya toined out ta be a rat."

"What's the rush?" Dr. Slowly would answer. "Your date with the electric chair isn't until next week."

Though they played for only a half a dollar a game, this half-buck meant more to them than the hundreds they wagered at the card tables. Lightly played fiercely and angrily, banging the pieces down, while the dentist, lifting his hands in mock surprise, would murmur, "Slowly, slowly . . ." and make each move with the calculated and irritating languor which had earned him his nickname.

A strange dentist, you must be thinking, yet each profession has its share of low-lifes. Dr. Slowly's office was in a poor neighborhood, and for years he exploited the unfortunates who placed themselves in his hands. Many a cavity was created where none existed, and the dentist, far from being ashamed, would boast of his chicaneries.

"A man rang my bell last night," I once heard him say. "His jaw was the size of a grapefruit. I told him my price for night jobs was twenty-five dollars. He said he didn't have the money. But he was wearing a watch." Dr. Slowly took a wrist watch from his pocket and dangled it proudly. "It's a beauty, isn't it? An Elgin—must be worth sixty dollars."

"Before I metcha," Lightly commented, "I useta believe in God."

But despite this hatred, whenever Slowly missed an evening at the coffee-house, Lightly would walk around like a man minus a dimension. It seemed he lived only to insult the dentist.

One morning a tooth began doing nip-ups in Lightly's head.

"Look, rat," he said when he arrived at the dentist's office, "I gotta hole in my toot.' I know which one, so don't go toinin' da odda ones inside out. Fill it up an' ya make two bucks."

Dr. Slowly inspected the cavity. "This is going to hurt," he said happily. "I'd better give you gas."

"Ya must think I'm nuts," sneered Lightly. "I should letcha gimme gas wid a wallet in my pocket? Start drillin', rat, and rememba I got my eyes on ya."

Dr. Slowly went to it. Remembering Lightly's insults, he pressed the drill deeper and deeper. By the time it was over, the pickpocket's gums looked like raw hamburger. But he didn't crack once — he wouldn't give Slowly the satisfaction. Before leaving, he took out four half-dollars, spat bloodily on each, and threw them on the floor. Next evening the two men resumed their chess game, heaving abominations at each other as if nothing had happened.

Two weeks later, a hood called Dogface Amroff came to the coffee-house to play pinochle. Dogface had come by his name honestly—he had two enormous buck teeth. While playing with Lightly, he complained that constant exposure to the air had affected one of his tusks.

"Lemme look at it," said Lightly, moving Dogface over to the window. As he tilted the hoodlum's face back with his left hand, the ex-dip lifted his friend's wallet with his right.

"It sure looks bad," he said. "Betta go see Doc Slowly. And have him give ya gas or it'll hoit."

When Dogface had gone, Lightly handed the hoodlum's wallet to the proprietor. "Amroff dropped dis. It's got eleven hundred dollas. Hold onta it fer 'im."

The rest of the story follows as the nightmare does the day. Next morning the papers reported the murder of Dr. Slowly. He had been slugged with a blunt instrument and given an overdose of his own gas. The police were puzzled. Though the office had been ransacked, the murderer hadn't touched the dead man's wallet or a number of watches on his person. He had evidently been looking for something else.

The coffee-house set figured it this way: When Dogface came out of the ether, Slowly demanded payment. When it wasn't forthcoming, he suspected a stall. Dogface, in turn, suspected the doctor and took appropriate action. This theory seemed even more logical when Dogface walked into the club that night with a puffy mouth. The hoodlum was startled when the proprietor handed him his wallet. When told that Lightly had turned it in, he handed the pickpocket a C-note. "Tanks, pal," he said. "I had it figured different."

The only man who mourned the passing of the dentist was Lightly. For hours on end, he would sit gazing at the corner table where he and Slowly always had played. Now and then he would insult some old friend, but his heart wasn't in it. Within the year, he passed away.

I don't know how the student of psychiatry would explain Lightly's death, but I have my own theory. I think he died of a broken heart.

Very truly yours,

Billy Rose

Billy Rose

Back in the '20's, I occasionally patronized an East Side coffee-house known as the Caledonia Social Club. One of its steady customers was "Once-Over-Lightly," a somewhat reformed pickpocket, and another was Dr. Slowly, an unreformed dentist.

For years, Lightly and Slowly played cards for high stakes, but never with each other. However, after each card session they would adjourn to a corner table to play chess, and the psychiatric overtones of their vituperations and name-calling were worthy of Kraft-Ebbing's attention.

Lightly, who had a bitter and mordant wit, did most of the insulting. "Hurry up an' play, awreddy," he would screech at Slowly. "Ya fodda steals from da blind an' ya mudda eats dog food, so it's no wonder ya toined out ta be a rat."

"What's the rush?" Dr. Slowly would answer. "Your date with the electric chair isn't until next week."

Though they played for only a half a dollar a game, this half-buck meant more to them than the hundreds they wagered at the card tables. Lightly played fiercely and angrily, banging the pieces down, while the dentist, lifting his hands in mock surprise, would murmur, "Slowly, slowly . . ." and make each move with the calculated and irritating languor which had earned him his nickname.

A strange dentist, you must be thinking, yet each profession has its share of low-lifes. Dr. Slowly's office was in a poor neighborhood, and for years he exploited the unfortunates who placed themselves in his hands. Many a cavity was created where none existed, and the dentist, far from being ashamed, would boast of his chicaneries.

"A man rang my bell last night," I once heard him say. "His jaw was the size of a grapefruit. I told him my price for night jobs was twenty-five dollars. He said he didn't have the money. But he was wearing a watch." Dr. Slowly took a wrist watch from his pocket and dangled it proudly. "It's a beauty, isn't it? An Elgin—must be worth sixty dollars."

"Before I metcha," Lightly commented, "I useta believe in God."

But despite this hatred, whenever Slowly missed an evening at the coffee-house, Lightly would walk around like a man minus a dimension. It seemed he lived only to insult the dentist.

One morning a tooth began doing nip-ups in Lightly's head.

"Look, rat," he said when he arrived at the dentist's office, "I gotta hole in my toot.' I know which one, so don't go toinin' da odda ones inside out. Fill it up an' ya make two bucks."

Dr. Slowly inspected the cavity. "This is going to hurt," he said happily. "I'd better give you gas."

"Ya must think I'm nuts," sneered Lightly. "I should letcha gimme gas wid a wallet in my pocket? Start drillin', rat, and rememba I got my eyes on ya."

Dr. Slowly went to it. Remembering Lightly's insults, he pressed the drill deeper and deeper. By the time it was over, the pickpocket's gums looked like raw hamburger. But he didn't crack once — he wouldn't give Slowly the satisfaction. Before leaving, he took out four half-dollars, spat bloodily on each, and threw them on the floor. Next evening the two men resumed their chess game, heaving abominations at each other as if nothing had happened.

Two weeks later, a hood called Dogface Amroff came to the coffee-house to play pinochle. Dogface had come by his name honestly—he had two enormous buck teeth. While playing with Lightly, he complained that constant exposure to the air had affected one of his tusks.

"Lemme look at it," said Lightly, moving Dogface over to the window. As he tilted the hoodlum's face back with his left hand, the ex-dip lifted his friend's wallet with his right.

"It sure looks bad," he said. "Betta go see Doc Slowly. And have him give ya gas or it'll holt."

When Dogface had gone, Lightly handed the hoodlum's wallet to the proprietor. "Amroff dropped dis. It's got eleven hundred dollas. Hold onta it fer 'im."

The rest of the story follows as the nightmare does the day. Next morning the papers reported the murder of Dr. Slowly. He had been slugged with a blunt instrument and given an overdose of his own gas. The police were puzzled. Though the office had been ransacked, the murderer hadn't touched the dead man's wallet or a number of watches on his person. He had evidently been looking for something else.

The coffee-house set figured it this way: When Dogface came out of the ether, Slowly demanded payment. When it wasn't forthcoming, he suspected a stall. Dogface, in turn, suspected the doctor and took appropriate action. This theory seemed even more logical when Dogface walked into the club that night with a puffy mouth. The hoodlum was startled when the proprietor handed him his wallet. When told that Lightly had turned it in, he handed the pickpocket a C-note. "Tanks, pal," he said. "I had it figured different."

The only man who mourned the passing of the dentist was Lightly. For hours on end, he would sit gazing at the corner table where he and Slowly always had played. Now and then he would insult some old friend, but his heart wasn't in it. Within the year, he passed away.

I don't know how the student of psychiatry would explain Lightly's death, but I have my own theory. I think he died of a broken heart.

Very truly yours,
Billy Rose

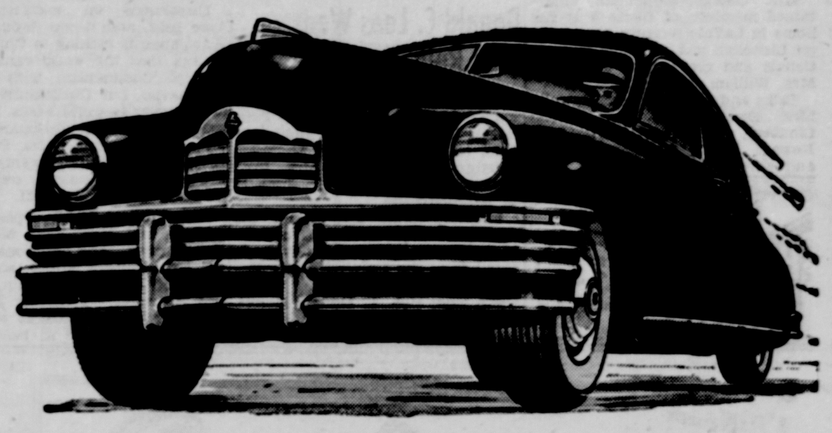
Pick extra mileage
right out of the air!



EVER wonder how important it is for an engine to be able to breathe easily? Then just consider . . .

1. An efficient engine wants to "inhale" about 1,450 cubic feet of air with every gallon of gas. That's volume!

2. An eight-cylinder engine "inhales" as many as 240 times (or more) per second. That's frequency!

Now you know why "free-breathing" engine design is so important.

And what does all this mean to the motorist? It means "safety-sprint" acceleration. Extra smoothness. And above all—a gain of up to 10% in fuel economy!

Emery Says Firm Is Suing Union In Bus Stoppage

Lengthy Session Ends In Deadlock

R. L. Emery, Jr., president of the Emery Motor Coach Lines, Inc., reported yesterday in Martinsburg, W. Va., that the company, whose Cumberland Division has been strikebound since May 5, has filed suit in United States District Court, in Baltimore against the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL) for breach of contract.

Emery's disclosure that the suit has been filed followed a 13½-hour session, at which the union was reported to have rejected a company proposal and the company turned down a counter-offer by the union.

There was a disagreement between Emery and John M. Elliott, international representative of the union, as to the local's action on the company offer.

Elliott asserted the local "rejected nanimously" the company's proposal. Emery declared he believed that "60 per cent of the men" were willing to accept the offer.

Company Proposals Listed

Cancellation of the present contract because the men went on strike.

Agreement by the company to negotiate a new contract as of now, provided the union would agree that the wage rates in each classification covered by the contract be slashed 10 cents an hour.

After 90 days, the company would increase the rates by five per cent.

The company agreed to reinstate in their jobs two of the three men discharged before the stoppage. The two to be reinstated were William Sams, local union unit chairman, provided he would not be a member of the union's grievance committee, and Bernard Michaels, provided he would serve the remaining two days of his three-day suspension imposed by the company for his part in an accident.

The management refused to reinstate the third man, Theodore Hill, who the company claimed, failed to report an accident when it happened.

Employes would be called to work on the basis of seniority.

Jack Geary, a shopman, who was receiving 62 cents an hour, would be classified according to scale when called to work. Emery, who explained Geary was too young to be classified when hired, said he would be called back. The union claimed Geary should have received $1.10 an hour as a serviceman.

No Vacations Provided

There would be no vacations for employes and no pay in lieu of vacations.

All pending suits would be dropped.

The proposed 10 per cent wage slashes would cut drivers from $1.10 to $1 an hour, first class mechanics from $1.22 to $1.12 an hour, second class mechanics from $1.15 to $1.05 an hour and servicemen from $1.10 to $1 an hour.

Elliott said as soon as the company's offer was received, he summoned a meeting of the local, and all but one member responded.

Counter-Proposal Provisions

He asserted management "hammered the union" for a counter-proposal, and declared it was submitted. It contained these provisions:

All employes be returned to work without prejudice and the present contract remain in force.

The union would agree to arbitrate the six original issues in dispute prior to the strike, if the company would agree to arbitrate.

"The men," he asserted, "have repeatedly stated they will not return to work, and I have pointed out to them that it is entirely up to them. However, I could never recommend that they accept anything like this most recent proposal or the only other proposal received, which provided for the dismissal of the three men.

'Insofar as I am concerned these are 'union busting' proposals and I see no evidence yet of a sincere effort on the part of the company to induce the men to return to work under conditions that would be satisfactory to the employes.

"I cannot see any hope of a settlement."

Emery declined to give any statement other than to outline the company's offer.

The meeting broke up without plans for further negotiations, it was reported, and union officials said Elliott returned to Philadelphia after asking that he be kept advised of developments.

Emery Says Firm Is Suing Union In Bus Stoppage

R. L. Emery, Jr., president of the Emery Motor Coach Lines, Inc., reported yesterday in Martinsburg, W. Bed Rock

It is interesting to see constructors of great buildings excavating for the foundations that must hold mammoth structures. They have to go to bed rock to do so, else those foundations would never hold their gigantic weight.

So essential is it to get to the very bottom of a great question or problem, it has become a common expression to say "get down to bed rock" in a discussion of vast importance. We are all familiar with the story in the Bible of the man who built his house upon a rock—so that no winds nor storms disturbed it.

The character of a man is his greatest credential. If it is founded upon solid principles of honesty, justice and sterling worth he will be respected by all, and a welcomed man everywhere he goes. He'll lose no time in hunting a life job. The job will be after him with speed!

The basis of all great art is good drawing—seeing the essentials as they are, and then adding one's interpretation. Alphonse Legros, the great French-English artist, once stated before his art class that anyone who could draw could attempt anything in art. He proved this statement by his own experience. He was a great sculptor, painter, draughtsman in every medium, magnificent etcher and lithographer. A noted commentator once said of Legros that he improved everything in art that he touched—and that he touched everything! He began at bed rock.

There is a tendency these days for many a youth to neglect the great and important steps in the foundation of character and a useful life. He wants to get things without digging for them. He bites at the bit when it comes to spending the essential period of training for the big job ahead. It's first getting down to bed rock before any notable or useful career can be achieved. Ever note the speed with which the great building rises—after the foundation has been set upon bed rock?

I have just finished reading a book that it took the author years to write, so careful he was to get his facts, his characters and locations correctly prepared. But the fame of that book has lasted over a hundred years, and will live for so long as great writing is respected. That's what happens when you place your foundations upon solid bed rock. Nothing else is safe or successful.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Congress wants to quit Saturday so it can share the fun in the Philadelphia rumpus room Monday. It has a grubstake in that rescue expedition.

Senator Taft says no soap on the adjournment until all new business is old folks. Speaker Martin insists on a recess until the Democrats nominate Truman and a sound truck.

That will give congressmen a six-weeks' vacation canvassing their own districts for an option on renewal. There's one Democrat who has been in Washington sixteen years and is still superstitious about house-warmings.

It's up to the Republicans next Monday. If the Democrats win another leg on the cup they retire the office from competition.

Welfare Discussion Planned Sunday

A public meeting will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in City Hall auditorium to discuss the recent special session of the Maryland Legislature and appropriations made for the welfare agencies of the state, according to I. C. Brant, committee chairman.

An emergency fund of $2,650,758 was asked by Welfare Director J. Milton Patterson, but Governor Lane cut this sum to $500,000 as the top amount the Maryland treasury could afford at this time, Brant said yesterday.

State Senator Robert B. Kimble, minority leader, who called the emergency fund legislation "the most important piece of business before this session," will attend Sunday's meeting.

County Seeks Repairs To Vale Summit Road

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday passed a resolution requesting the State Roads Commission to repair, resurface and relocate the Vale Summit road as it is termed unsafe and hazardous for traffic by residents of the section it traverses.

Leslie Clark, chairman of a committee of Georges Creek residents, submitted the resolution for action by the county board.

Some repairs have been made on the road recently but it is still believed to be hazardous due to numerous curves and dips, according to Clark.

20 Per Cent Of County Taxes Already Paid

Collection of Allegany county taxes, mostly on real estate, within the last two weeks has resulted in $241,012.19 being paid out of a total of $1,195,460 charged to this account, according to W. A. Strother, collector for District No. 1 at the Court House.

This represents about 20 per cent of the total and Strother said that at the rate the taxes are being paid there will be about 90 per cent payment of the total figure by the end of June.

The $1,195,460 levy against real estate is based on an assessment of approximately $68,000,000, Strother said.

The discount rate during June is five per cent, in July four per cent and in August, the last discount month, three per cent. After that the penalty period sets in.

Tax bills this year are for the 15-month period from April 1, 1948 to June 30, 1949. This is required in order that the county can conform to the new state uniform accounts regulation and become eligible for various state monies.

Welfare Discussion Planned Sunday

A public meeting will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in City Hall auditorium to discuss the recent special session of the Maryland Legislature and appropriations made for the welfare agencies of the state, according to I. C. Brant, committee chairman.

An emergency fund of $2,650,758 was asked by Welfare Director J. Milton Patterson, but Governor Lane cut this sum to $500,000 as the top amount the Maryland treasury could afford at this time, Brant said yesterday.

State Senator Robert B. Kimble, minority leader, who called the emergency fund legislation "the most important piece of business before this session," will attend Sunday's meeting.

County Seeks Repairs To Vale Summit Road

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday passed a resolution requesting the State Roads Commission to repair, resurface and relocate the Vale Summit road as it is termed unsafe and hazardous for traffic by residents of the section it traverses.

Leslie Clark, chairman of a committee of Georges Creek residents, submitted the resolution for action by the county board.

Some repairs have been made on the road recently but it is still believed to be hazardous due to numerous curves and dips, according to Clark.

20 Per Cent Of County Taxes Already Paid

Collection of Allegany county taxes, mostly on real estate, within the last two weeks has resulted in $241,012.19 being paid out of a total of $1,195,460 charged to this account, according to W. A. Strother, collector for District No. 1 at the Court House.

This represents about 20 per cent of the total and Strother said that at the rate the taxes are being paid there will be about 90 per cent payment of the total figure by the end of June.

The $1,195,460 levy against real estate is based on an assessment of approximately $68,000,000, Strother said.

The discount rate during June is five per cent, in July four per cent and in August, the last discount month, three per cent. After that the penalty period sets in.

Tax bills this year are for the 15-month period from April 1, 1948 to June 30, 1949. This is required in order that the county can conform to the new state uniform accounts regulation and become eligible for various state monies.

Snyder Is Hospitalized

By C. V. BURNS

Last Saturday in the first of the "big" games Westvaco knocked off the Frostburg VFW (7-4) at Westernport and replaced the Mountain City team as pace setters in the 10-club circuit.

This Saturday the same teams tangle in Frostburg and a victory would return Manager Frank Urbas' club to the top berth in the league.

Leo Ryan notched his fifth victory against a single loss when he was returned the winner over Bob Cook in last week's battle. Cook now has four wins and two losses.

Cook will likely get a chance to avenge that setback this week unless Al "Lefty" Lauber, of Altoona, shows up and gets the assignment. If Ryan doesn't get the call for Westvaco it will likely be Elmer Hoffman, who at this time leads the twirlers of the Bi-State loop with five wins and no losses.

Anyway, it looms as one of the league's big games of the season and promises to attract a large crowd.

Hyndman's Firemen certainly redeemed themselves after losing that 27-1 game at Frostburg on June 4 when they scraped up about everybody but the bat boy to field a team so as not to forfeit the contest.

Henry Schupfer apologized and remarked:

"This won't happen again if I have anything to do with it."

Two days later Hyndman jumped into the pickle barrel and came up with ancient Ray Bruck and the veteran righthander hung it on Frostburg to the tune of 5-3.

Since the debacle of June 4 Hyndman has bagged four straight games and is now tied for third place with the Amvets just two full games out of first place.

In addition to taking the scalp of Frostburg, the Fire Fighters massaged Mt. Savage 4-1, Midland 12-8 and Barton 6-2.

Yes, Henry, all is forgiven, your pardon is on the way from the governor.

The longest losing streak of the current baseball campaign belongs to the Keyser A. C. of the Bi-State League.

The new entry in this year's race marked its debut with a 10-8 win over Lonaconing. Since then, however, Keyser has suffered eleven consecutive defeats and they're so deep in the cellar it may take more than dynamite to blast them out.

Over in the Interstate Baseball League, Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, undefeated in eight starts, has scored 83 runs or an average of 10 runs per game.

Norman Geatz has notched three of the wins, "Pat" Creegan and Al Thompson, two each, and Jack Kauffman, one.

The Legion's next engagement with its closest competitor, Moorefield (6-1) is set for Sunday, June 27 at Community Park. The score of the opener at Moorefield was 10-8.

Last Friday when Wellersburg's powerful team of the County Softball League swamped Bedford Road here by the score of 14-0, the losing team sent to the Times-News office an account of the game which started out as follows:

"Wellersburg defeated Bedford Road by the score of 14-0. The umpiring was the lousiest ever seen here and was responsible for Bedford Road's defeat."

We presume that the umpire was holding the bats of the losing team's players when they came to the plate because they obtained only four hits.

Wellersburg, incidentally, got 16 hits in that game but those blows apparently had nothing to do with the Pennsylvania team winning the game. Oh, yeah!

• — • — •

Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh of Fort Hill's Bi-State Conference and City championship baseball teams, says the secret of Jimmie Manges' hitting this season is a 90-cent bat which was purchased at a North Mechanic street sporting goods store.

"Bobby" reports he purchased two 90-cent bats at the start of the season. After one was broken Manges continued to use the other.

Charles E. Babst, donor of the Babst Award annually since 1925 to Allegany High School's outstanding student-athlete, writes from New York City and states he is contemplating holding a dinner next year to mark the silver anniversary event.

When Earl "Lefty" Bruce won the gold wrist watch at Allegany's commencement exercises last week he became the 24th winner of the Babst Award.

The promoter who made an unsuccessful bid to bring the Willard-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight to Cumberland in 1919, has been a very sick man.

Here's hoping hospital treatment will speed Snyder's recovery.

• — • — •

Anyone is allowed to issue a challenge at local amateur boxing shows and the sad part of it all is that matchmakers usually fall for the gag.

Bob Sisk's three-hit pitching performance coupled with a 15-hit barrage by his teammates enabled the Potomac Valley Cubs to crack the 12-game winning streak of Wellersburg yesterday in an Allegany County Softball League contest at Pinto. The score was 10-4.

It was only the third loss of the season in 22 starts for the Pennsylvanians.

Wellersburg's lead was sliced to 4½ games when the high-stepping Narrows Park Cardinals walloped Bedford Road at Narrows Park to the tune of 12-1.

"Pete" Cecil with two doubles and a triple and Lease and Broadwater with three hits apiece sparked the Potomac Valley attack that resulted in the upsetting of Wellersburg.

"Lefty" Wolz tossed a three-hitter as Narrows Park extended its winning streak at the expense of Bedford Road. Wolz retired the last 18 men to face him in order as the Parkers hung up their 7th consecutive victory. Widdows led the Park offensive with three singles in four trips to the plate.

Narrows Park and Wellersburg will tangle on the latter's field Thursday.

Rapping out 15 hits the Hyndman Firemen trounced Allegany Grove at the latter place by the score of 14-4. Bobby Miller was the winning pitcher and he led his team at the bat by collecting three hits. Twigg, Frye, Wertz and Lewis had two blows each for Allegany Grove.

The C. and P. Telephone Workers marked up a 10-3 triumph over Ellerslie on the latter's field. Canfield and Smith were the heavy hitters for C. and P. with a two-bagger and single each while Herb Devore got four for four and Ken Lowery smashed a home run for Ellerslie. The scores:

FORT HILL ACES-- Jimmie Manges, left, and Clarence "Buck" Shaw, right, played important roles as Fort Hill High School made a clean sweep of the Bi-State Conference and city baseball championships this season. Manges, shortstop, topped the league hitters with an average of .563 for 10 games while Shaw, a little righthander, weighing not more than 135 pounds, led the pitchers with a 5-1 record. "Buck" gave the Sentinels the city title by defeating both Allegany and LaSalle then climaxed his high school career yesterday by twirling Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's team to a 16-8 win over Allegany in a playoff game to determine the Bi-State Conference championship.

Sentinels Capture 2nd Diamond Crown

Fort Hill High School's baseball aggregation added another star to its crown yesterday by defeating Allegany High School in a ragged game at Community Park by the score of 16-8 to romp off with the Bi-State Scholastic Conference championship for the 1948 season.

A gathering of 450 cash customers turned out for the playoff game which was necessitated after the teams had finished their regular campaign deadlocked for first place with records of eight wins and two losses.

The game was marred by a total of 16 errors, each team committing eight fielding bobbles, Jimmie Lease, AHS shortstop showing the way with four miscues.

Fort Hill earned nine of its 16 runs while only two earned runs were credited to the Campobello nine, both coming in the final inning.

Allegany played minus the services of its pitching ace, Jim Clingan, who went to Boston for a tryout with the Boston Braves, and "Ab" See, first sacker, and Roy Perrell, third sacker, took turns on the rubber for the Blue and White. The pair yielded 14 hits and every player in the Fort Hill lineup got one or more safeties. Every player but Glen Burke scored one or more runs for the Sentinels.

Ronnie Cage's great throw from centerfield doubling Clites at the plate in the first inning was the fielding gem. Lattimer of Fort Hill was cut down at the plate when he tried to stretch a triple into a home run. Earl "Lefty" Bruce's fast fielding on balls hit to the outfield highlighted Allegany's play.

Clarence "Buck" Shaw went the route for the Sentinels to notch his eighth victory in 10 starts for the entire season. Jimmy Eckard was the "big gun" for Fort Hill with a triple, double and single. The box:

Metric Distances To Prevail In NCAA Track, Field Meet

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 15 (INS)—The gas man isn't the only one who'll be reading meters in Minneapolis this weekend.

In view of the forthcoming Olympics, the N.C.A.A. track and field championships at the University of Minnesota Friday and Saturday will forsake traditional adherence to the American yardage system and hold its running events at metric distances.

The National A.A.U. track meet at Milwaukee July 2 and 3 and the final Olympic trials at Evanston, Ill., the following weekend will use the metric system too.

220-yard dash—200 meters (218 y., 2', 2")
440-yard run—400 meters (437 y., 1', 4")
880-yard run—800 meters (874 y., 2', 8")

Giants Plan School

24 TICKETS SOLD ON DAILY DOUBLE, PAYOFF IS $1,720

CHICAGO, June 15 (AP) — A daily double playoff of $1,720.80, largest of the season, warmed up some of the 9,788 half frozen fans watching the Lincoln Fields races at Washington Park today.

The winning combination consisted of Grand River at $48.20 in the first race, and Vinita Dot at $19.00 in the second event. Twenty four tickets were sold on the twosome.

Joe D'Augustino was aboard Grand River, who nosed out Timmyroo, a 35-1 shot, with High Mayer third in the sprint for cheap three year olds. Vinita Dot, with Harold Keene up, won the second heat by three quarters of a length over Sun Storm.

Charm Prince, juvenile colt owned by the team of Gleeson and Litwin, further staggered the chalk players when he took the third race at $192.80 for $2, biggest payoff of the season.

Dodgers Nose Out Redlegs In Ninth

Ward's Outfield Fly Decides 5-4 Contest

BROOKLYN June 15 (AP) — Four Cincinnati errors and two passed balls helped the Brooklyn Dodgers defeat the Reds, 5-4, today.

Pinch-Hitter Preston Ward drove in the winning run in the ninth inning when he flied out with one down and the bases loaded.

Pee Wee Reese singled to open the Dodger ninth and raced to third when Pitcher Harry Gumbert threw Gil Hodges' bunt into center field. Billy Cox was intentionally passed, loading the bases. Dick Whiteman batted for Ed Miksis and forced Reese at the plate but Ward then lifted to Centerfielder Johnny Wyrostek and Hodges beat the throw to the plate for the winning run. Box:

The Cumberland Fraternal Order of Eagles chalked up their eighth consecutive victory in the Rocking Chair Softball League yesterday when they took the measure of the Cumberland Outdoor Club by the score of 2-1 on the Rolling Mill diamond.

After George Weaver engineered a double play that thwarted the Outdoor Club in the top of the seventh with two runners on the paths and one out, the Eagles sewed up the game in their half of the frame. George Rice got a life on an error, moved to third on Dick Aman's bunt and scored the deciding marker on Don Knieriem's single.

The Loyal Order of Moose tossers were extended nine innings to eke out a 3-2 decision over Celanese at Fort Hill Field. Frank Fogtman won his own game when he singled home the winning tally after Jackson and Angellatta had hit safely. Bob Wade's outfield fly scored the run that knotted the count at 2-2 in the 7th. Celanese took a 2-1 lead in the top of 7th when Pinch Hitter Harvey delivered a single to drive home Shircliffe and Chaney. Jim Angellatta and Fogtman of the Moose and Shaffer of the Silkmen had two hits each. The victory was Fogtman's 5th of the season.

Jim Browning's Knights of Columbus climbed out of last place by upsetting the B.P.O. Elks at East Side, 6-4. The winners collected 11 hits, Jack Loibel, Ray Swach and Ray Madden pacing the assault with two blows each. Wilkinson and Roy Whiteman each hit safely twice for the Elks.

Akron Boxer Scores Over Chuck Taylor

PITTSBURGH, June 15 (AP)—Rudy Zadell, 144, of Akron won a split decision over Chuck Taylor, 145, of Coalport, Pa. in a ten-round welterweight bout at Zivic Arena tonight.

The bout was decided on the ballot of Referee Ernie Sesto after Judges Buck Styperk and Freddie Lux disagreed. Sesto awarded the fourth and sixth stanzas to Zadell due to low punches tossed by Taylor. Zadell went to the canvas clutching at his stomach after absorbing hard body punches but came back in the third and battled uphill to the close verdict.

Both boys kept punching all the way but it was Taylor who finally gave way. He appeared a very tired chap in the tenth when the Akron kid pursued him all over the ring to sew up the honors.

Snyder Is Hospitalized

By C. V. BURNS

Last Saturday in the first of the "big" games Westvaco knocked off the Frostburg VFW (7-4) at Westernport and replaced the Mountain City team as pace setters in the 10-club circuit.

This Saturday the same teams tangle in Frostburg and a victory would return Manager Frank Urbas' club to the top berth in the league.

Leo Ryan notched his fifth victory against a single loss when he was returned the winner over Bob Cook in last week's battle. Cook now has four wins and two losses.

Cook will likely get a chance to avenge that setback this week unless Al "Lefty" Lauber, of Altoona, shows up and gets the assignment. If Ryan doesn't get the call for Westvaco it will likely be Elmer Hoffman, who at this time leads the twirlers of the Bi-State loop with five wins and no losses.

Anyway, it looms as one of the league's big games of the season and promises to attract a large crowd.

Hyndman's Firemen certainly redeemed themselves after losing that 27-1 game at Frostburg on June 4 when they scraped up about everybody but the bat boy to field a team so as not to forfeit the contest.

Henry Schupfer apologized and remarked:

"This won't happen again if I have anything to do with it."

Two days later Hyndman jumped into the pickle barrel and came up with ancient Ray Bruck and the veteran righthander hung it on Frostburg to the tune of 5-3.

Since the debacle of June 4 Hyndman has bagged four straight games and is now tied for third place with the Amvets just two full games out of first place.

In addition to taking the scalp of Frostburg, the Fire Fighters massaged Mt. Savage 4-1, Midland 12-8 and Barton 6-2.

Yes, Henry, all is forgiven, your pardon is on the way from the governor.

The longest losing streak of the current baseball campaign belongs to the Keyser A. C. of the Bi-State League.

The new entry in this year's race marked its debut with a 10-8 win over Lonaconing. Since then, however, Keyser has suffered eleven consecutive defeats and they're so deep in the cellar it may take more than dynamite to blast them out.

Over in the Interstate Baseball League, Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, undefeated in eight starts, has scored 83 runs or an average of 10 runs per game.

Norman Geatz has notched three of the wins, "Pat" Creegan and Al Thompson, two each, and Jack Kauffman, one.

The Legion's next engagement with its closest competitor, Moorefield (6-1) is set for Sunday, June 27 at Community Park. The score of the opener at Moorefield was 10-8.

Last Friday when Wellersburg's powerful team of the County Softball League swamped Bedford Road here by the score of 14-0, the losing team sent to the Times-News office an account of the game which started out as follows:

"Wellersburg defeated Bedford Road by the score of 14-0. The umpiring was the lousiest ever seen here and was responsible for Bedford Road's defeat."

We presume that the umpire was holding the bats of the losing team's players when they came to the plate because they obtained only four hits.

Wellersburg, incidentally, got 16 hits in that game but those blows apparently had nothing to do with the Pennsylvania team winning the game. Oh, yeah!

Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh of Fort Hill's Bi-State Conference and City championship baseball teams, says the secret of Jimmie Manges' hitting this season is a 90-cent bat which was purchased at a North Mechanic street sporting goods store.

"Bobby" reports he purchased two 90-cent bats at the start of the season. After one was broken Manges continued to use the other.

Charles E. Babst, donor of the Babst Award annually since 1925 to Allegany High School's outstanding student-athlete, writes from New York City and states he is contemplating holding a dinner next year to mark the silver anniversary event.

When Earl "Lefty" Bruce won the gold wrist watch at Allegany's commencement exercises last week he became the 24th winner of the Babst Award.

The promoter who made an unsuccessful bid to bring the Willard-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight to Cumberland in 1919, has been a very sick man.

Here's hoping hospital treatment will speed Snyder's recovery.

Anyone is allowed to issue a challenge at local amateur boxing shows and the sad part of it all is that matchmakers usually fall for the gag.

Bob Sisk's three-hit pitching performance coupled with a 15-hit barrage by his teammates enabled the Potomac Valley Cubs to crack the 12-game winning streak of Wellersburg yesterday in an Allegany County Softball League contest at Pinto. The score was 10-4.

It was only the third loss of the season in 22 starts for the Pennsylvanians.

Wellersburg's lead was sliced to 4½ games when the high-stepping Narrows Park Cardinals walloped Bedford Road at Narrows Park to the tune of 12-1.

"Pete" Cecil with two doubles and a triple and Lease and Broadwater with three hits apiece sparked the Potomac Valley attack that resulted in the upsetting of Wellersburg.

"Lefty" Wolz tossed a three-hitter as Narrows Park extended its winning streak at the expense of Bedford Road. Wolz retired the last 18 men to face him in order as the Parkers hung up their 7th consecutive victory. Widdows led the Park offensive with three singles in four trips to the plate.

Narrows Park and Wellersburg will tangle on the latter's field Thursday.

Rapping out 15 hits the Hyndman Firemen trounced Allegany Grove at the latter place by the score of 14-4. Bobby Miller was the winning pitcher and he led his team at the bat by collecting three hits. Twigg, Frye, Wertz and Lewis had two blows each for Allegany Grove.

The C. and P. Telephone Workers marked up a 10-3 triumph over Ellerslie on the latter's field. Canfield and Smith were the heavy hitters for C. and P. with a two-bagger and single each while Herb Devore got four for four and Ken Lowery smashed a home run for Ellerslie. The scores:

FORT HILL ACES-- Jimmie Manges, left, and Clarence "Buck" Shaw, right, played important roles as Fort Hill High School made a clean sweep of the Bi-State Conference and city baseball championships this season. Manges, shortstop, topped the league hitters with an average of .563 for 10 games while Shaw, a little righthander, weighing not more than 135 pounds, led the pitchers with a 5-1 record. "Buck" gave the Sentinels the city title by defeating both Allegany and LaSalle then climaxed his high school career yesterday by twirling Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's team to a 16-8 win over Allegany in a playoff game to determine the Bi-State Conference championship.

Sentinels Capture 2nd Diamond Crown

Fort Hill High School's baseball aggregation added another star to its crown yesterday by defeating Allegany High School in a ragged game at Community Park by the score of 16-8 to romp off with the Bi-State Scholastic Conference championship for the 1948 season.

A gathering of 450 cash customers turned out for the playoff game which was necessitated after the teams had finished their regular campaign deadlocked for first place with records of eight wins and two losses.

The game was marred by a total of 16 errors, each team committing eight fielding bobbles, Jimmie Lease, AHS shortstop showing the way with four miscues.

Allegany played minus the services of its pitching ace, Jim Clingan, who went to Boston for a tryout with the Boston Braves, and "Ab" See, first sacker, and Roy Perrell, third sacker, took turns on the rubber for the Blue and White. The pair yielded 14 hits and every player in the Fort Hill lineup got one or more safeties. Every player but Glen Burke scored one or more runs for the Sentinels.

Ronnie Cage's great throw from centerfield doubling Clites at the plate in the first inning was the fielding gem. Lattimer of Fort Hill was cut down at the plate when he tried to stretch a triple into a home run. Earl "Lefty" Bruce's fast fielding on balls hit to the outfield highlighted Allegany's play.

Clarence "Buck" Shaw went the route for the Sentinels to notch his eighth victory in 10 starts for the entire season. Jimmy Eckard was the "big gun" for Fort Hill with a triple, double and single. The box:

Metric Distances To Prevail In NCAA Track, Field Meet

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 15 (INS)—The gas man isn't the only one who'll be reading meters in Minneapolis this weekend.

In view of the forthcoming Olympics, the N.C.A.A. track and field championships at the University of Minnesota Friday and Saturday will forsake traditional adherence to the American yardage system and hold its running events at metric distances.

The National A.A.U. track meet at Milwaukee July 2 and 3 and the final Olympic trials at Evanston, Ill., the following weekend will use the metric system too.

220-yard dash—200 meters (218 y., 2', 2")
440-yard run—400 meters (437 y., 1', 4")
880-yard run—800 meters (874 y., 2', 8")

Dodgers Nose Out Redlegs In Ninth

Ward's Outfield Fly Decides 5-4 Contest

BROOKLYN June 15 (AP) — Four Cincinnati errors and two passed balls helped the Brooklyn Dodgers defeat the Reds, 5-4, today.

Pee Wee Reese singled to open the Dodger ninth and raced to third when Pitcher Harry Gumbert threw Gil Hodges' bunt into center field. Billy Cox was intentionally passed, loading the bases. Dick Whiteman batted for Ed Miksis and forced Reese at the plate but Ward then lifted to Centerfielder Johnny Wyrostek and Hodges beat the throw to the plate for the winning run. Box:

After George Weaver engineered a double play that thwarted the Outdoor Club in the top of the seventh with two runners on the paths and one out, the Eagles sewed up the game in their half of the frame. George Rice got a life on an error, moved to third on Dick Aman's bunt and scored the deciding marker on Don Knieriem's single.

The Loyal Order of Moose tossers were extended nine innings to eke out a 3-2 decision over Celanese at Fort Hill Field. Frank Fogtman won his own game when he singled home the winning tally after Jackson and Angellatta had hit safely. Bob Wade's outfield fly scored the run that knotted the count at 2-2 in the 7th. Celanese took a 2-1 lead in the top of 7th when Pinch Hitter Harvey delivered a single to drive home Shircliffe and Chaney. Akron Boxer Scores Over Chuck Taylor

PITTSBURGH, June 15 (AP)—Rudy Zadell, 144, of Akron won a split decision over Chuck Taylor, 145, of Coalport, Pa. in a ten-round welterweight bout at Zivic Arena tonight.

The bout was decided on the ballot of Referee Ernie Sesto after Judges Buck Styperk and Freddie Lux disagreed. Sesto awarded the fourth and sixth stanzas to Zadell due to low punches tossed by Taylor. Zadell went to the canvas clutching at his stomach after absorbing hard body punches but came back in the third and battled uphill to the close verdict.

Both boys kept punching all the way but it was Taylor who finally gave way. He appeared a very tired chap in the tenth when the Akron kid pursued him all over the ring to sew up the honors.

Ray Robinson Is 6-1 Choice In Title Bout

May Be Sugar's Last Go As Welterweight

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, June 15 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, knockout winner over 58 of his 88 foes in an eight-year career, figures he also must flatten challenger Bernard Docusen Thursday night, or kiss goodbye to his welterweight crown and a shot at Tony Zale.

Robinson, a 6 to 1 favorite at the moment, said today he believed that if the 21-year-old Docusen used his dancing-master tactics for the 15-round route at Comiskey Park, the decision could go against him.

May Get Shot At Zale

A knockout triumph would start a steam-roller movement for a Robinson-Zale bout which conceivably could lure a record middleweight gate. If this developed, Robinson would have to relinquish his welter crown.

Robinson now has to work furiously to make the 147-pound welter weight. With Rocky Graziano in the discard and Frenchman Marcel Cerdan still fussing for European superiority, the middleweight division is hard-pressed for an outstanding challenger.

Docusen, a quiet lad several inches shorter than Robinson, hasn't talked much since he began training. In workouts, however, he has boxed spectacularly with tremendous speed and quick, sharp punching.

The New Orleans youth, victor in 48 of 50 bouts, 11 by knockouts, and Robinson have had one common opponent, Norman Rubio. In June, 1946, Robinson took a 10-round decision from Rubio. Two months later, Docusen beat Rubio in eight rounds.

Docusen's strategy, as announced by himself and his handlers, is to keep on top of the champion all the way—never letting him get set to throw a damaging punch.

But Robinson is a slick boxer, himself, as well as a lethal puncher. He's especially dangerous when the chips are down.

Stopped Chuck Taylor

Robinson's first defense of the title he won from Tommy Bell Dec. 20, 1946, was his fatal eighth-round knockout of Jimmy Doyle at Cleveland last June 24. In his only other title appearance, he flattened Chuck Taylor in six at Detroit last December 19.

Since the Taylor bout, Robinson scored lackadaisical decisions over Ossie Harris on March 4 and Henry Brimm March 14. Only once in his knockout-strewn career has Robinson gone three straight fights without a kayo. That was in 1942 when he won successive decisions over Jake La Motta, Izzy Jannazzo and Vic Dellicurti. Then he belted out Jannazzo in eight rounds.

Vernon Bickford — Warren Spahn — Johnny Sain — Tommy Holmes — Jeff Heath

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

Since we were among the alleged "experts" who doffed our hat in the direction of the Boston Braves for the National League pennant, it's about time we took stock of the senior loop situation.

At this writing it looks good, for the Beantown entry of the "Three Little Steam Shovels" is up there in first place, which is just where the club was a year ago.

But the pleasing feature, of course, is that the Braves really have something this year and it's purely a matter of the breaks from here on in as to whether the "Steam Shovels," Lou Perini, Guido Rugo and Joseph Maney, who front-office the club, have the pennant they have been building for.

The Braves haven't won a pennant since 1914. That's a long time. Last year they threatened, although when the race was over, the Braves, league-leaders for 18 days, were down in third place, nine games out of first.

The showing of the Braves has made the Beantown front office look good for the trades that were made during the winter and spring have proven good ones.

The Braves got Jim Russell, an outfielder, from the Pirates, and Jeff Heath, another flychaser, from the Browns. Both boys have been tagged with "problem player" connotations at various times and some baseball observers shook their heads over the woe the Boston club acquired.

But Manager Bill Southworth, a fine moulder of men and a manager who is highly regarded by his players, laughed that off and, following his exacting training routine, the boys came through in fine fashion.

When Russell was inserted in the line-up he went on a hitting spree and after six games was swatting at a .450 clip. He has dropped since but he still is potent with the bat. Heath, playing regularly, also has been pounding the ball and his play in the field has been the talk of the Braves' camp.

The Braves will tell you they lost the flag last year down the middle. Eddie Stanky was purchased from the Dodgers and the Braves' infield is clicking. The Braves' fielding has been one of the big reasons for the success of the club. The latest averages reveal the Braves have made fewer errors than any club in the circuit.

Tommy Holmes, the big gun in the Boston attack, has been among the league leaders in batting and his war club has won several games.

Ray Robinson Is 6-1 Choice In Title Bout

May Be Sugar's Last Go As Welterweight

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, June 15 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, knockout winner over 58 of his 88 foes in an eight-year career, figures he also must flatten challenger Bernard Docusen Thursday night, or kiss goodbye to his welterweight crown and a shot at Tony Zale.

Robinson, a 6 to 1 favorite at the moment, said today he believed that if the 21-year-old Docusen used his dancing-master tactics for the 15-round route at Comiskey Park, the decision could go against him.

May Get Shot At Zale

A knockout triumph would start a steam-roller movement for a Robinson-Zale bout which conceivably could lure a record middleweight gate. If this developed, Robinson would have to relinquish his welter crown.

Robinson now has to work furiously to make the 147-pound welter weight. With Rocky Graziano in the discard and Frenchman Marcel Cerdan still fussing for European superiority, the middleweight division is hard-pressed for an outstanding challenger.

Docusen, a quiet lad several inches shorter than Robinson, hasn't talked much since he began training. In workouts, however, he has boxed spectacularly with tremendous speed and quick, sharp punching.

The New Orleans youth, victor in 48 of 50 bouts, 11 by knockouts, and Robinson have had one common opponent, Norman Rubio. In June, 1946, Robinson took a 10-round decision from Rubio. Two months later, Docusen beat Rubio in eight rounds.

Docusen's strategy, as announced by himself and his handlers, is to keep on top of the champion all the way—never letting him get set to throw a damaging punch.

But Robinson is a slick boxer, himself, as well as a lethal puncher. He's especially dangerous when the chips are down.

Stopped Chuck Taylor

Robinson's first defense of the title he won from Tommy Bell Dec. 20, 1946, was his fatal eighth-round knockout of Jimmy Doyle at Cleveland last June 24. In his only other title appearance, he flattened Chuck Taylor in six at Detroit last December 19.

Since the Taylor bout, Robinson scored lackadaisical decisions over Ossie Harris on March 4 and Henry Brimm March 14. Only once in his knockout-strewn career has Robinson gone three straight fights without a kayo. That was in 1942 when he won successive decisions over Jake La Motta, Izzy Jannazzo and Vic Dellicurti. Then he belted out Jannazzo in eight rounds.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

Since we were among the alleged "experts" who doffed our hat in the direction of the Boston Braves for the National League pennant, it's about time we took stock of the senior loop situation.

At this writing it looks good, for the Beantown entry of the "Three Little Steam Shovels" is up there in first place, which is just where the club was a year ago.

But the pleasing feature, of course, is that the Braves really have something this year and it's purely a matter of the breaks from here on in as to whether the "Steam Shovels," Lou Perini, Guido Rugo and Joseph Maney, who front-office the club, have the pennant they have been building for.

The Braves haven't won a pennant since 1914. That's a long time. Last year they threatened, although when the race was over, the Braves, league-leaders for 18 days, were down in third place, nine games out of first.

The showing of the Braves has made the Beantown front office look good for the trades that were made during the winter and spring have proven good ones.

The Braves got Jim Russell, an outfielder, from the Pirates, and Jeff Heath, another flychaser, from the Browns. Both boys have been tagged with "problem player" connotations at various times and some baseball observers shook their heads over the woe the Boston club acquired.

But Manager Bill Southworth, a fine moulder of men and a manager who is highly regarded by his players, laughed that off and, following his exacting training routine, the boys came through in fine fashion.

When Russell was inserted in the line-up he went on a hitting spree and after six games was swatting at a .450 clip. He has dropped since but he still is potent with the bat. Heath, playing regularly, also has been pounding the ball and his play in the field has been the talk of the Braves' camp.

The Braves will tell you they lost the flag last year down the middle. Eddie Stanky was purchased from the Dodgers and the Braves' infield is clicking. The Braves' fielding has been one of the big reasons for the success of the club. The latest averages reveal the Braves have made fewer errors than any club in the circuit.

Tommy Holmes, the big gun in the Boston attack, has been among the league leaders in batting and his war club has won several games.

The pitching staff, kept going by Bill Voiselle at the start of the season, is improving. Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain have twirled some fine games and extra help has come from the rookie, Vernon Bickford, who pitched for Milwaukee in 1947.

Fined For Aiding Poor Millionaire

LONDON (AP)—Ernest Boughton had a mild brush with the law for giving a millionaire something money couldn't buy in hungry England: two hams. He was fined $4 for failing to turn in the food coupons on his present to his friend, a wealthy business man.

"I could not find any better present to give a millionaire who does not want money," Boughton told the judge. "He is a big racehorse owner and has done me a lot of good turns in his time."

The court told Boughton, who established that he got the hams free from a farmer friend, that it was all right for him to accept them as a gift but when he passed them on he became, legally, a food distributor.

French Scientists Going To Arctic

PARIS (AP) — The first French Artic expedition since the war is going to Greenland, its leader, Paul Emile Victor, says. "We are not going to look for uranium," he says. "Our work has no military purpose."

He and his 20 fellow explorers will spend about six months measuring the thickness of the polar ice cap and making other scientific studies. The ice cap measurements are part of an attempt to find out if the earth is getting colder or hotter. Victor says that the Artic trip will be a try-out for a two or three year expedition to the Antarctic afterwards.

Anabara is a river in Siberia, emptying into the Arctic ocean, Asia, and forming the boundary between the government of Yeniseisk and the territory of Yakutsk.

Denver Police Pass Looks Good To Reds

DENVER—(AP)—Reported Lee Callison of the "Denver Post" visited Berlin after going along on a recent B-29 flight from the United States to Germany. Some Russian soldiers stopped him but allowed him to pass when he showed his military credentials. Two blocks farther another Russian halted him and shook his head at the same papers.

Then Callison drew a small card from his billfold and the sentry waved him on. The card was a Denver police department press pass—its color, fire department red.

Arbitrator Rules On Three Cases At Celanese Plant

Samuel A. Jaffee, arbitrator in three disputes between Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, and the Celanese Corporation of America rejected a union demand that insurance premiums paid to certain employes be refunded but granted an increased rate for jet finishers. Decision on a third case is pending further action by both parties.

The union's demand that the company be required, in whole or in part to refund premiums paid by certain employes in to the group insurance plan at the Amcelle plant for the period May 19 through June 30, 1947, during the period of a strike, must be and is denied, according to Samuel H. Jaffee, of the American Arbitration Association.

After examining the position of both sides on the insurance premium issue and checking the testimony, Jaffee listed six reasons for his conclusion denying the union's contention.

1. It sems more likely that had a refund been intended, the parties would have used the word "refund," or "reimburse," or some similar term.

2. The company's refusal on June 26 to antedate the contract, chiefly for the stated reason that this would include the strike period and hence constitute a premium for striking, was a clear indication that a refund would not be given at least for the period covered by the strike. The letter from Edward Allan (personnel manager at the plant) of June 28 which referred to May 30 as a terminal date made this doubly clear.

3. I am satisfied that the parties did not in any event intend a refund for only a portion of a single month.

4. A prospective and not retroactive application is normally made unless the facts clearly require the latter. The facts here do not so require.

5. If it be assumed (and I make this assumption) that the union expected a refund, and thus had it in mind, the fact remains that the company did not have in mind making one. There was no meeting of the minds on this point.

6. Normally, of course, an employer does not give "monetary benefits" for a strike period. If it is claimed that he had agreed to do so, the evidence should be sufficiently clear to that effect.

The union had contended that the contract negotiated between the parties to end the 1947 strike contained a provision for the company payment of the entire cost of the insurance. The union was seeking return of premiums paid for the month of June under the former plan under which the employes paid part of the premiums.

In the case of pay rates for jet finishers (a new process), the union won an award under which the hourly pay is set at $1.19.

The company set the figure at $1.14 for this new process and has been paying at this rate. The union asked for $1.41 and at a hearing before an arbitrator the union reduced this figure to $1.35 per hour.

In his conclusions, Jaffee stated that it is unfortunate that these rate cases have to be arbitrated. They involve factors of judgment on evaluation of technical processes that the parties almost always know more about than any arbitrator.

Jaffee rejected the union's comparison of the disputed job with that of jet drilling. The evidence shows clearly that the latter work is entirely different and calls for substantially greater degree of skill.

The award was made retroactive to the date when the occupation was established or changed.

The arbitrator decided after hearing an appeal for the rehiring of Mrs. Zora Penrod, that upon examination by a physician mutually agreed upon by the union and company that reinstatement is to be dependent upon certification of the physician.

An employee of the Twisting Department, the union appealed the refusal of the company to allow her to resume her duties after an illness.

Mrs. Penrod, 63, was first employed by the company October 6, 1943. On the night of April 24, 1946, she became severly ill because of an infected gall bladder and her physician ordered her to a hospital. After an operation she was off work until November, 1946.

Mattress Set Sale!

Mattress and boxspring with the famous Balanced-Unit innerspring by Nachman

both for $69.00

One coil is buoyant. Two coils, set one flush atop another, double the buoyancy, give you super-wonderful, floating-on-air comfort—by Nachman!

WHY ALL THE EXCITEMENT OVER THE SPRING CONSTRUCTION? JUST THIS:

- For a "Balanced Unit," Nachman makes the innerspring and the boxspring each with 209 coils to the full size. That means an innerspring coil fits right over a boxspring coil—balances springiness against springiness for super-comfort.
- For "Body Balance," Nachman gives the mattress unit stouter, heavier coils where body weight most needs them.
- Nachman gives the mattress innerspring the famous Permaform unit—a flat, helical-joined edge that helps prevent sagging.
- Nachman has the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory (one of the world's biggest) supervise every step in the making of every unit. Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory won't let an innerspring unit pass muster unless it's perfect. That means you don't worry about innerspring quality—you know it's there.

Seal of the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory.

WHY ALL THE EXCITEMENT OVER THE SLEEP SET ITSELF?

- Over that wonderful innerspring unit, Royal adds a 58% layer of cotton felt, a 32% layer of sisal padding.
- Royal covers both mattress and boxspring in matching, long-wearing woven ticking, adds button tufts and a shapeholding pre-built border.

WHY ALL THE EXCITEMENT OVER PRICE?

- 69.00 for both pieces? Have you seen mattress ads lately? Do you know Kline's famous gift for thrift? Then you know 69.00 is an almost unheard-of low price for this mattress plus boxspring. So hurry in, or write, phone for twin (39") or full (54") size. You may pay on Kline's easy credit plan.

City Of Keyser Employes Win $5 Pay Increase

Raises Will Be Effective Today

KEYSER, W. Va.—A $5 monthly raise, effective today, was granted to all salaried employes of the City of Keyser at the regular meeting of Mayor John C. Freeland and the City Council yesterday afternoon. Call clerks were granted an increase of $1.50 per month, with all alley rated men granted an hourly raise.

City officials voted to purchase a double-page space in the program of the West Virginia Firemen's Convention to be held in Keyser in August. E. Wade Thomas, chief of the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company, which will be host to the convention, requested the action. Chief Thomas also requested the purchase of two fire extinguishers, which was granted. The cost of the extinguishers and the add will be taken from the firemen's fund.

John Purgitt, superintendent of the Keyser Water Works, requested purchase of an automatic electric switch for the water station. Purgitt said the present switch, which is badly worn and beyond repair, has been in use since 1924. The council agreed to seek price quotations.

Claude Martin, chief of police, requested that the council have an extension put on the control cord at the traffic light at the intersection of Main and Armstrong Streets. Approval was granted.

A discussion was held on the purchase of a new car for the Keyser Police Department. City Clerk A. A. Jordan was instructed to contact several automobile dealers regarding the matter.

Three building permits were granted by the councilmen. Nancy Hanks Post No. 3518, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was granted permission to construct a new home for the post at the corner of Patrick and East Street. The building is to be of concrete block, 37 by 100 feet, at an approximate cost of $25,000.

Marsden E. Hawes was granted permission to build two additional rooms to his present home on Keys Street. The addition is to be 22 by 13 feet at an approximate cost of $800.

Elimination of an inspection pit included in the plans and specifications for the new home for the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company, which is undergoing construction, was requested by the building committee of the fire company so that the $400 required for building the pit may be used toward completion of the home.

City Of Keyser Employes Win $5 Pay Increase

Raises Will Be Effective Today

KEYSER, W. Va.—A $5 monthly raise, effective today, was granted to all salaried employes of the City of Keyser at the regular meeting of Mayor John C. Freeland and the City Council yesterday afternoon. Call clerks were granted an increase of $1.50 per month, with all alley rated men granted an hourly raise.

City officials voted to purchase a double-page space in the program of the West Virginia Firemen's Convention to be held in Keyser in August. E. Wade Thomas, chief of the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company, which will be host to the convention, requested the action. Chief Thomas also requested the purchase of two fire extinguishers, which was granted. The cost of the extinguishers and the add will be taken from the firemen's fund.

John Purgitt, superintendent of the Keyser Water Works, requested purchase of an automatic electric switch for the water station. Purgitt said the present switch, which is badly worn and beyond repair, has been in use since 1924. The council agreed to seek price quotations.

Claude Martin, chief of police, requested that the council have an extension put on the control cord at the traffic light at the intersection of Main and Armstrong Streets. Approval was granted.

A discussion was held on the purchase of a new car for the Keyser Police Department. City Clerk A. A. Jordan was instructed to contact several automobile dealers regarding the matter.

The council approved the purchase of a carload of asphalt to repair and resurface streets in Keyser.

Three building permits were granted by the councilmen. Nancy Hanks Post No. 3518, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was granted permission to construct a new home for the post at the corner of Patrick and East Street. The building is to be of concrete block, 37 by 100 feet, at an approximate cost of $25,000.

Marsden E. Hawes was granted permission to build two additional rooms to his present home on Keys Street. The addition is to be 22 by 13 feet at an approximate cost of $800.

Elimination of an inspection pit included in the plans and specifications for the new home for the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company, which is undergoing construction, was requested by the building committee of the fire company so that the $400 required for building the pit may be used toward completion of the home.

Military Rites Held By Legion For Parsons Vet

Richard E. Paugh Accidently Killed

PARSONS, W. Va.—Full military rites were given at the grave by Blue Ridge Post No. 22, American Legion of Davis, for Richard Edward Paugh, 25, World War II, veteran who was instantly killed Saturday when he was electrocuted.

Paugh a truck driver for the Sam Polina Strip Mine at Benbush had driven his vehicle into a refueling shed and raised the dump bed preparing to grease the hoist.

It is believed the dump bed came into contact with a high tension wire that sent a shock of 2300 volts through Paugh's body when he returned and touched the truck.

The charge of electricity workers believe passed through his body when he returned to the truck with a quart of oil to work, throwing him face down, probably dead at that time. The oil can was still clutched in his hands, but the oil had spilled on the ground. He was first seen by workers in the shop who noticed him lying on the ground.

Those at the scene gave first aid and summoned the Davis Volunteer Fire department along with a Parsons physician who worked for more than four hours before declaring him dead.

The death occurred 23 years after young Paugh's father, Richard Paugh, met death in a mine accident in Thomas from runaway coal cars which crushed him to death.

Paugh was born in Thomas, April 30, 1923 a son of the late Richard Paugh and Belinda Hines Phillips. He attended Davis high school and served for three years with the army, entering January 1943 with the 462nd., AAA, Second Division Artillery until his discharge October 1945. He served for 22 months in the ETO where he won the Good conduct medal, three overseas service stripes and the Campaign ribbon with one Silver Star.

Surviving include his mother, his step father, Selve Phillips, and two brothers, Henry Paugh of Davis, and Basil Phillips of Silver Lake, Md.

The Rev. Andrew B. Mann officiated at funeral services held in the Presbyterian church of Thomas and interment was made in the Rose Hill cemetery.

Richard E. Paugh Accidently Killed

PARSONS, W. Va.—Full military rites were given at the grave by Blue Ridge Post No. 22, American Legion of Davis, for Richard Edward Paugh, 25, World War II, veteran who was instantly killed Saturday when he was electrocuted.

Paugh a truck driver for the Sam Polina Strip Mine at Benbush had driven his vehicle into a refueling shed and raised the dump bed preparing to grease the hoist.

It is believed the dump bed came into contact with a high tension wire that sent a shock of 2300 volts through Paugh's body when he returned and touched the truck.

The charge of electricity workers believe passed through his body when he returned to the truck with a quart of oil to work, throwing him face down, probably dead at that time. The oil can was still clutched in his hands, but the oil had spilled on the ground. He was first seen by workers in the shop who noticed him lying on the ground.

Those at the scene gave first aid and summoned the Davis Volunteer Fire department along with a Parsons physician who worked for more than four hours before declaring him dead.

The death occurred 23 years after young Paugh's father, Richard Paugh, met death in a mine accident in Thomas from runaway coal cars which crushed him to death.

Paugh was born in Thomas, April 30, 1923 a son of the late Richard Paugh and Belinda Hines Phillips. He attended Davis high school and served for three years with the army, entering January 1943 with the 462nd., AAA, Second Division Artillery until his discharge October 1945. He served for 22 months in the ETO where he won the Good conduct medal, three overseas service stripes and the Campaign ribbon with one Silver Star.

Surviving include his mother, his step father, Selve Phillips, and two brothers, Henry Paugh of Davis, and Basil Phillips of Silver Lake, Md.

The Rev. Andrew B. Mann officiated at funeral services held in the Presbyterian church of Thomas and interment was made in the Rose Hill cemetery.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our darling son, James Herbert Jewell, who died one year ago, June 15, 1947.
Today will bring sad memories,
Of our loved one Gone to Rest,
Who will always be remembered,
By those who loved him best.
Sadly missed by his Parents & Family,
Mr. & Mrs. Charles E. Jewell,
Cumberland, Md.

In memory of William T. Lewis, who passed away two years ago, June 16, 1946.
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain,
We have suffered since we lost you.
Life has never been the same,
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
There's not a day, dear son, husband, brother
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by Mother, Dad, Wife, Brothers & Sisters.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Couple Unusual Quiz Contestants

I seem to be stuck for the moment on quiz contests. If you'll just bear with me a moment, I'd like to put on the record a small, significant anecdote omitted from yesterday's column concerning "Double or Nothing." One of the contestants was an Englishman, a very proper Englishman (from England, y'know), the first Englishman I've ever heard at a quiz contest. Bounder didn't know the rules of the game.

John Crosby

First crack out of the box, Walter O'Keefe, the quiz master, asked the fellow — perfectly natural question at a quiz program — where he met his wife. Well, sir, any decent American knows the proper answer for that. Met the old girl in a revolving door. Or jostled her at the two dollar window at Belmont. Something like that. Adds a little spice, y'know. Audience likes a little witticism. Any man knows that.

Audience couldn't believe its ears. Just sat there, thunder-struck. Not a peep out of them. Not a bofola. Introduced to her by her sister, indeed! What sort of a way is that for a man to meet his future consort? World's going to the dogs!

That's not the half of it, old chap. Not the half of it. The bounder answered every question correctly. Had the most preposterous information stuffed away in him somewhere. Knew all about the Scotch wearing kilts, the Spanish girls wearing mantillas, the Romans wearing togas. Walked off with eight guineas, if you please. Not cricket to come to a quiz program so fully prepared. Not cricket at all, y'know. Man's obviously not an amateur. Probably been educated. Ought to be barred from the turf for life.

And that's not all. The chap had the infernal cheek to ejaculate the correct answer to the jackpot question. One hundred eighty pounds in the jackpot, placed there by decent, well brought up, properly misinformed folk who didn't know the name of the second President of the United States. And this cad had the incredible effrontery to know the name of the first Pope and walked off with the whole amount. Not cricket, y'know. Not cricket at all.

Who was the first Pope? My dear fellow, you don't suppose I didn't forget it as quickly as possible. My amateur standing has never been questioned at quiz contests. I've never got beyond the four dollar question. . . .

One last mention for quiz contests, an episode that may be common to the more relentless quiz program listeners but was my first experience in this line. There's a quiz program over WOR in New York called the Tello-Test. It's one of those telephone jobs. A man calls a housewife in Glen Ridge and asks her who wrote "Ben Hur." She stutters a moment and then dashes around the house trying to find a source book which divulges that information. Ten seconds before the deadline, she's back on the phone and announces triumphantly Charles Dickens. The man says I'm sorry Madam and tries again over in Bound Brook.

The other day, the emcee got hold of a housewife in the Bronx and started to explain that he represented the Tello-Test program. That's as far as he got. He didn't even have a chance to ask her who was the defeated candidate in the disputed election won by Rutherford B. Hayes. She didn't give him a chance. She was mad. To my knowledge she was the first housewife who ever got good and angry at a radio emcee for interrupting her housework with silly questions.

In vain, the emcee spluttered that it wasn't a wrong number, that it was a radio program, that he was trying, for heaven's sake, to give her some money if she just knew the name of . . . . That's as far as he got. She hung up.

Maybe it's a trend. Maybe housewives aren't interested in money any more. It's just possible they're more interested in getting the dusting done than in chattering over the telephone with radio announcers. Maybe it's the millenium.

MAESTEG, Wales — (AP) — Clive Jenkins, 3, didn't bat an eyelid when he fell into a pool of tar at a disused local works — he couldn't, they were stuck together. Rescuers summoned by his pal, Philip Jones, 2, hauled him out with a rope.

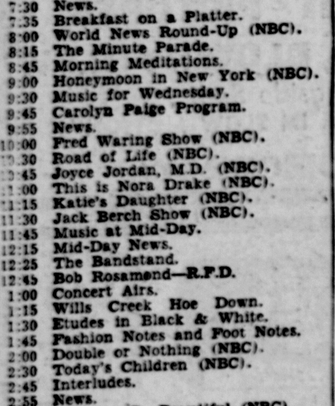
SALLY'S SALLIES



"Tell me when you've had enough, Mr. Gassaway."

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Couple Unusual Quiz Contestants

I seem to be stuck for the moment on quiz contests. If you'll just bear with me a moment, I'd like to put on the record a small, significant anecdote omitted from yesterday's column concerning "Double or Nothing." One of the contestants was an Englishman, a very proper Englishman (from England, y'know), the first Englishman I've ever heard at a quiz contest. Bounder didn't know the rules of the game.

John Crosby

First crack out of the box, Walter O'Keefe, the quiz master, asked the fellow — perfectly natural question at a quiz program — where he met his wife. Well, sir, any decent American knows the proper answer for that. Met the old girl in a revolving door. Or jostled her at the two dollar window at Belmont. Something like that. Adds a little spice, y'know. Audience likes a little witticism. Any man knows that.

Not this chap. Fellow drew himself up stiffly and replied: "I was introduced to her by her sister."

Audience couldn't believe its ears. Just sat there, thunder-struck. Not a peep out of them. Not a boffola. Introduced to her by her sister, indeed! What sort of a way is that for a man to meet his future consort? World's going to the dogs!

That's not the half of it, old chap. Not the half of it. The bounder answered every question correctly. Had the most preposterous information stuffed away in him somewhere. Knew all about the Scotch wearing kilts, the Spanish girls wearing mantillas, the Romans wearing togas. Walked off with eight guineas, if you please. Not cricket to come to a quiz program so fully prepared. Not cricket at all, y'know. Man's obviously not an amateur. Probably been educated. Ought to be barred from the turf for life.

And that's not all. The chap had the infernal cheek to ejaculate the correct answer to the jackpot question. One hundred eighty pounds in the jackpot, placed there by decent, well brought up, properly misinformed folk who didn't know the name of the second President of the United States. And this cad had the incredible effrontery to know the name of the first Pope and walked off with the whole amount. Not cricket, y'know. Not cricket at all.

Who was the first Pope? My dear fellow, you don't suppose I didn't forget it as quickly as possible. My amateur standing has never been questioned at quiz contests. I've never got beyond the four dollar question. . . .

One last mention for quiz contests, an episode that may be common to the more relentless quiz program listeners but was my first experience in this line. There's a quiz program over WOR in New York called the Tello-Test. It's one of those telephone jobs. A man calls a housewife in Glen Ridge and asks her who wrote "Ben Hur." She stutters a moment and then dashes around the house trying to find a source book which divulges that information. Ten seconds before the deadline, she's back on the phone and announces triumphantly Charles Dickens. The man says I'm sorry Madam and tries again over in Bound Brook.

The other day, the emcee got hold of a housewife in the Bronx and started to explain that he represented the Tello-Test program. That's as far as he got. He didn't even have a chance to ask her who was the defeated candidate in the disputed election won by Rutherford B. Hayes. She didn't give him a chance. She was mad. To my knowledge she was the first housewife who ever got good and angry at a radio emcee for interrupting her housework with silly questions.

In vain, the emcee spluttered that it wasn't a wrong number, that it was a radio program, that he was trying, for heaven's sake, to give her some money if she just knew the name of . . . . That's as far as he got. She hung up.

Maybe it's a trend. Maybe housewives aren't interested in money any more. It's just possible they're more interested in getting the dusting done than in chattering over the telephone with radio announcers. Maybe it's the millenium.

(Copyright, 1948, New York Herald Tribune, Inc.)

MAESTEG, Wales — (AP) — Clive Jenkins, 3, didn't bat an eyelid when he fell into a pool of tar at a disused local works — he couldn't, they were stuck together. Rescuers summoned by his pal, Philip Jones, 2, hauled him out with a rope.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 15—(INS)—You can bet that when "The Fountainhead" starts at Warners, Bette Davis will be the star. Last week whispers were circulating that Garbo would make her comeback in the Ayn Rand novel which has stirred up more casting excitement than anything since "Gone With the Wind."

Bette Davis

Then Lauren Bacall had the call and before that Barbara Stanwyck. But mind what Mamma says: When King Vidor starts this big one, Queen Bette will be set in the role of the glamorous heroine.

As for Gary Cooper, he is still blowing hot and cold about the co-starring role. He isn't convinced it is just the right thing for him. So maybe there will be some news about that situation soon.

They get speechless around the Goldwyn lot describing the youngster who must be nothing short of a combination of Shirley Temple, Margaret O'Brien and Sarah Bernhardt at 7.

Born in Los Angeles three months after her parents, the Robert Perreaus, escaped from Nazi-held France, Gigi started in the movies at two playing the infant Eve Curie in "Madame Curie." Her 10-year-old brotner, Peter Miles, is already launched on a screen career and was starred in "The Red Pony."

We have started to get some fascinating accounts from Louella Parsons, about her trip abroad and her visit to Ireland.

In her own words, she was "seasick as a dawg" for the entire crossing. Her maid was seasick and she lost some luggage. But Ireland turned out to be the dream she expected.

film broke at the sneak preview of "I thought I was being kidded when a reporter in Cork told me he was from the 'Cork Examiner.'" Lop writes, "but it was on the level.

"Lord Mayor, Mr. Michael Sheehan, is the best looking Irishman I've ever seen and he has been the most gracious host. This afternoon we went to Blarney Castle and kissed the Blarney stone—me hanging by my feet. I wish all Hollywood could see the wonderful Savoy cinema theater here—seats 2,242 and the upper floor has a restaurant serving the finest food. What a whirl. More later."

It happened last week when the "Key Largo" and the projectionist couldn't seem to get things going again:

Jack Warner, usually the most amiable of gentlemen, was pacing the theater lobby all but tearing his hair and muttering about firing somebody or everybody.

Everybody was leaving the boss alone when, a little man rushed up and said, "Oh, just everything is wrong tonight, Mr. Warner. The popcorn machine hasn't been working for two hours!"

Hollywood in shorts: Harry Crocker's house isn't big enough, so he borrowed Jimmy McHugh's to toss a gay cocktail party honoring Jimmy's 25-years in song business.

Practically everyone, who had been at Sonja Henie's the night before, braved the sunlight to admire pretty girls splashing around in the pool and to listen to the wonderful music.

Loretta Young, in a white, green and red print looking so beautiful, sat quietly near the pool with Tom Lewis. I noticed even the newshounds present didn't mention the story about her father to her. Everyone thinks Loretta did a fine thing—contributing to the support of a man who deserted her mother and sisters and whom she never recalled knowing.

Deputy Smoke Inspector May Be Named Soon

City Seeks Local Man, Mayor Says

Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday the city hopes to appoint a deputy smoke inspector by midsummer to assist George M. Hitchcock, city smoke abatement engineer.

The mayor said two persons have expressed interest in the position, but he pointed out that other applications will also be accepted.

Although the salary of such an inspector would be set by the Mayor and Council, depending on experience and other qualifications, Mayor Post said the salary would probably be about $3,000 a year.

The smoke control appropriation for the current 15-month fiscal period is $9,000. The mayor said the salary of a deputy inspector and that of a secretary for the smoke engineer's office, to be opened at City Hall in the next few weeks, would be taken care of through the appropriation.

Mayor Post said the city hopes to employ a local man for the position of deputy smoke inspector, preferably one trained in combustion and power plant work. Thus a railroad man or an employe at one of the locl industrial plants might be eligible, he pointed out.

Written applications should be addressed to the mayor's office at City Hall, after which interviews will be arranged.

Mayor Post said the inspector would probably be employed under contract with the city, since that is the arrangement with Hitchcock.

The inspector's duties would include inspecting fuel installations in the city and investigating complaints involving violations of the city smoke control ordinance.

Arrangements are being made to open the smoke engineer's office in Room 14 on the second floor at City Hall, after the premises are painted and office equipment is secured.

Since his appointment in January, Hitchcock has maintained his office in the superintendent's house at Lake Gordon. He is also employed by the city as superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company.

Her hobbies include most outdoor sports and she is an avid baseball enthusiast, a particular fan of the Dodgers. Miss Brant is a vocalist and will sing an "oldie" in the talent phase of the contest at Fort Hill High School Monday night.

Aged Cresaptown Woman Lost In Dan's Mt. Area

Mrs. George Pfister Went Berry Picking

Aproximately 200 persons, representing volunteer firemen, church, school and civic organizations were aiding last night in the search for Mrs. George Pfister, 68, Cresaptown, who went berry picking yesterday and did not return.

State Police were notified of the disappearance of the elderly woman and Trooper A. M. Spioch was sent to aid in the search.

According to neighbors of Mrs. Pfister, the elderly woman went berry picking on Dan's Mountain early yesterday morning. When she failed to come home around supper time, they became alarmed and began hunting for her in the vicinity where they believed she had started berry picking earlier in the day.

The mountainous section where the wild berries grow is known to be hazardous and rugged terrain, which led some searchers to believe Mrs. Pfister may have fallen and possibly was injured and unable to walk, while others believe she may have gotten lost and could not find her way back.

Volunteer firemen said last night, a searching party bearing lanterns and flashlights was scouring the wilderness but had not reported any trace of her whereabouts.

Paper Workers Contract Talks Are Broken Off

Negotiations Will Resume In August

Negotiations between the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and the United Paperworkers of America, CIO, on a contract covering workers of the Luke, Md., Williamsburg, Pa., and Covington, Va., plants were broken off here yesterday afternoon as a result of a disagreement over the application of mill seniority at the plants.

Wayne Ritchie, president of Luke Local 676 reported last night that the UPA-CIO would resume negotiations in August. The present contract expires August 20, he said.

Company Statement

"Negotiations between the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and the UPA (CIO), resumed here today after a two-week's intermission, came to a final break this afternoon (Tuesday) when the union refused to accept any change in the wording of a clause concerning the application of mill seniority.

"The company and the union have been discussing wages and contract terms for several weeks. At a meeting in Washington which broke up May 28 the company offered the union either an interim increase of five cents per hour under the present contract, which runs to August 20, or an increase of eleven cents per hour provided the parties could agree on a new contract. The union at first indicated that it would attempt to negotiate a new contract. The company agreed to a number of changes proposed by the union. The union, however, refused to accept any of the new wording suggested by the company and chose instead the five cents interim increase, which went into effect May 31.

"The present meeting was the outcome of an offer by the company to resume negotiations for the additional six cents. The chief issue that emerged today (Tuesday) was the question of the wording of the mill seniority clause. 'There has been a lot of misunderstanding about this', a company spokesman said. 'Nothing we propose would affect job or departmental seniority. What we are trying to do is to get qualified people in the beginning of the job sequence, so they can move along properly as opportunity permits. It's unfair to put an unqualified man in a line he can't follow up, and in the long run would impair the efficiency of the mills.'

"Since the present contract expires in August, it is expected that the parties will meet again before that time."

Union Stands Firm

Both sides, he reported, stood firm yesterday on the issue. He said that the union presumed that the company had changed its position on the issue when arrangements were made for yesterday's meeting.

Ritchie said the union will "fight to the finish" before it will give up any of the seniority rights it has had under recent CIO contracts.

He said the clause in the contract gives workers the opportunity to qualify for better jobs and gives them recall rights after furloughs.

The present clause, Ritchie said, reads:

"Seniority in the mill starts with the day an employe begins to work at the mill and gives precedence throughout the mill when it is not practical to fill a position according to mill seniority."

Raymond Crush, personnel manager of the Covington mill, headed the company delegation and Harry E. Scott, Covington, area UPA director, the union negotiations.

Court Reverses State Employment Security Board

Shovel Operator May Draw Jobless Pay

A ruling of the Maryland Employment Security Board which denied an unemployment compensation claim of Thomas Smith, Frostburg, a shovel operator formerly employed by George F. Hazelwood Company, was reversed in an opinion handed down in Circuit Court yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster.

Noel Speir Cook who represented Smith said the man was laid off from work and applied for his unemployment pay of $25 per week.

On September 23, 1947, the Employment Security Board found that Smith had violated provisions of the law by failure to report casual employment. Accordingly, a decision was rendered by the Board denying him benefits under the law until March 31, 1949.

Judge Huster said in his opinion, "The Section of the law imposes penalty for knowingly failing to disclose a material fact to obtain or increase any benefits under the Act. The evidence shows that claimant filed his claim for benefits on May 1, 1947, and May 8, 1947.

"During this period," the opinion continued, "he did obtain some casual employment which he failed to disclose when applying for his weekly compensation checks. He explains his failure to make this disclosure upon his ignorance of the law, and the evidence shows that he is illiterate.

"It is conceded," the Court wrote, "that when the matter was brought to his attention he promptly refunded the $25 payment. The only evidence that he knowingly defrauded is his alleged admission made when he refunded the said $25 and which admission as to fraudulent knowledge is denied by him.

"Under the laws of the state," Judge Huster concluded, "it is incumbent upon the Maryland Employment Board in this case to establish its case by a fair preponderance of the evidence and it is the opinion of this Court that it has failed to meet this burden and the decision of said Board be and it is hereby reversed."

Cook explained that as a result of the ruling, his client may now apply for and receive his unemployment pay.

Helfrich Reports On Replacement Cost Of Building

Union St. Structure 84 Per Cent Damaged

County Commissioners yesterday received a report from Hunter B. Helfrich, local contractor, on the Union Street County Building which was razed by fire April 21, telling them the structure can be considered 84 per cent damaged.

Helfrich, asked by the commissioners to prepare a survey and estimate of damage and replacement cost for the county board estimates replacement, including necessary excavation on the property where the damaged building stands, at $139,-163.45.

The contractor said to erect a new building will cost $144,000.

The county carried $42,500 insurance on the building and one official yesterday said that if the insurance company attempts to settle the fire insurance claim on the basis of Helfrich's figures, the county will receive only $35,700 insurance.

Helfrich explained, however, that no mutual agreement could be reached with a report on the building with another contractor who is making an estimate for insurance companies as to the damage done.

This is a question for the county board to take up with the insurance adjuster, it was indicated.

County commissioners have on several occasions expressed the opinion the building can be remodeled and rebuilt for the amount of insurance carried on the structure, if the third story is eliminated and the two lower floors repaired. By reducing the old three-story school building to a two-story structure, officials say adequate space will be thereby provided for Trial Magistrates Court, the State's Attorney, County Engineer and such other offices as the county must provide.

In view of Helfrich's estimates, there is some question now as to whether or not this is possible, and further discussion and study will be necessary, it is indicated.

Deputy Smoke Inspector May Be Named Soon

City Seeks Local Man, Mayor Says

Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday the city hopes to appoint a deputy smoke inspector by midsummer to assist George M. Hitchcock, city smoke abatement engineer.

The mayor said two persons have expressed interest in the position, but he pointed out that other applications will also be accepted.

Although the salary of such an inspector would be set by the Mayor and Council, depending on experience and other qualifications, Mayor Post said the salary would probably be about $3,000 a year.

The smoke control appropriation for the current 15-month fiscal period is $9,000. The mayor said the salary of a deputy inspector and that of a secretary for the smoke engineer's office, to be opened at City Hall in the next few weeks, would be taken care of through the appropriation.

Mayor Post said the city hopes to employ a local man for the position of deputy smoke inspector, preferably one trained in combustion and power plant work. Thus a railroad man or an employe at one of the locl industrial plants might be eligible, he pointed out.

Written applications should be addressed to the mayor's office at City Hall, after which interviews will be arranged.

Mayor Post said the inspector would probably be employed under contract with the city, since that is the arrangement with Hitchcock.

The inspector's duties would include inspecting fuel installations in the city and investigating complaints involving violations of the city smoke control ordinance.

Arrangements are being made to open the smoke engineer's office in Room 14 on the second floor at City Hall, after the premises are painted and office equipment is secured.

Since his appointment in January, Hitchcock has maintained his office in the superintendent's house at Lake Gordon. He is also employed by the city as superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company.

He plans to bring his wife and four children here from Everett, Pa., this week.

Aged Cresaptown Woman Lost In Dan's Mt. Area

Mrs. George Pfister Went Berry Picking

Aproximately 200 persons, representing volunteer firemen, church, school and civic organizations were aiding last night in the search for Mrs. George Pfister, 68, Cresaptown, who went berry picking yesterday and did not return.

State Police were notified of the disappearance of the elderly woman and Trooper A. M. Spioch was sent to aid in the search.

According to neighbors of Mrs. Pfister, the elderly woman went berry picking on Dan's Mountain early yesterday morning. When she failed to come home around supper time, they became alarmed and began hunting for her in the vicinity where they believed she had started berry picking earlier in the day.

The mountainous section where the wild berries grow is known to be hazardous and rugged terrain, which led some searchers to believe Mrs. Pfister may have fallen and possibly was injured and unable to walk, while others believe she may have gotten lost and could not find her way back.

Volunteer firemen said last night, a searching party bearing lanterns and flashlights was scouring the wilderness but had not reported any trace of her whereabouts.

Paper Workers Contract Talks Are Broken Off

Negotiations Will Resume In August

Negotiations between the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and the United Paperworkers of America, CIO, on a contract covering workers of the Luke, Md., Williamsburg, Pa., and Covington, Va., plants were broken off here yesterday afternoon as a result of a disagreement over the application of mill seniority at the plants.

Wayne Ritchie, president of Luke Local 676 reported last night that the UPA-CIO would resume negotiations in August. The present contract expires August 20, he said.

Company Statement

"Negotiations between the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and the UPA (CIO), resumed here today after a two-week's intermission, came to a final break this afternoon (Tuesday) when the union refused to accept any change in the wording of a clause concerning the application of mill seniority.

"The company and the union have been discussing wages and contract terms for several weeks. At a meeting in Washington which broke up May 28 the company offered the union either an interim increase of five cents per hour under the present contract, which runs to August 20, or an increase of eleven cents per hour provided the parties could agree on a new contract. The union at first indicated that it would attempt to negotiate a new contract. The company agreed to a number of changes proposed by the union. The union, however, refused to accept any of the new wording suggested by the company and chose instead the five cents interim increase, which went into effect May 31.

"The present meeting was the outcome of an offer by the company to resume negotiations for the additional six cents. The chief issue that emerged today (Tuesday) was the question of the wording of the mill seniority clause. 'There has been a lot of misunderstanding about this', a company spokesman said. 'Nothing we propose would affect job or departmental seniority. What we are trying to do is to get qualified people in the beginning of the job sequence, so they can move along properly as opportunity permits. It's unfair to put an unqualified man in a line he can't follow up, and in the long run would impair the efficiency of the mills.'

"Since the present contract expires in August, it is expected that the parties will meet again before that time."

Union Stands Firm

Both sides, he reported, stood firm yesterday on the issue. He said that the union presumed that the company had changed its position on the issue when arrangements were made for yesterday's meeting.

Ritchie said the union will "fight to the finish" before it will give up any of the seniority rights it has had under recent CIO contracts.

He said the clause in the contract gives workers the opportunity to qualify for better jobs and gives them recall rights after furloughs.

The present clause, Ritchie said, reads:

"Seniority in the mill starts with the day an employe begins to work at the mill and gives precedence throughout the mill when it is not practical to fill a position according to mill seniority."

Raymond Crush, personnel manager of the Covington mill, headed the company delegation and Harry E. Scott, Covington, area UPA director, the union negotiations.

Court Reverses State Employment Security Board

Shovel Operator May Draw Jobless Pay

A ruling of the Maryland Employment Security Board which denied an unemployment compensation claim of Thomas Smith, Frostburg, a shovel operator formerly employed by George F. Hazelwood Company, was reversed in an opinion handed down in Circuit Court yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster.

Noel Speir Cook who represented Smith said the man was laid off from work and applied for his unemployment pay of $25 per week.

On September 23, 1947, the Employment Security Board found that Smith had violated provisions of the law by failure to report casual employment. Accordingly, a decision was rendered by the Board denying him benefits under the law until March 31, 1949.

Judge Huster said in his opinion, "The Section of the law imposes penalty for knowingly failing to disclose a material fact to obtain or increase any benefits under the Act. The evidence shows that claimant filed his claim for benefits on May 1, 1947, and May 8, 1947.

"During this period," the opinion continued, "he did obtain some casual employment which he failed to disclose when applying for his weekly compensation checks. He explains his failure to make this disclosure upon his ignorance of the law, and the evidence shows that he is illiterate.

"It is conceded," the Court wrote, "that when the matter was brought to his attention he promptly refunded the $25 payment. The only evidence that he knowingly defrauded is his alleged admission made when he refunded the said $25 and which admission as to fraudulent knowledge is denied by him.

"Under the laws of the state," Judge Huster concluded, "it is incumbent upon the Maryland Employment Board in this case to establish its case by a fair preponderance of the evidence and it is the opinion of this Court that it has failed to meet this burden and the decision of said Board be and it is hereby reversed."

Cook explained that as a result of the ruling, his client may now apply for and receive his unemployment pay.

Helfrich Reports On Replacement Cost Of Building

Union St. Structure 84 Per Cent Damaged

County Commissioners yesterday received a report from Hunter B. Helfrich, local contractor, on the Union Street County Building which was razed by fire April 21, telling them the structure can be considered 84 per cent damaged.

Helfrich, asked by the commissioners to prepare a survey and estimate of damage and replacement cost for the county board estimates replacement, including necessary excavation on the property where the damaged building stands, at $139,-163.45.

The contractor said to erect a new building will cost $144,000.

The county carried $42,500 insurance on the building and one official yesterday said that if the insurance company attempts to settle the fire insurance claim on the basis of Helfrich's figures, the county will receive only $35,700 insurance.

Helfrich explained, however, that no mutual agreement could be reached with a report on the building with another contractor who is making an estimate for insurance companies as to the damage done.

This is a question for the county board to take up with the insurance adjuster, it was indicated.

County commissioners have on several occasions expressed the opinion the building can be remodeled and rebuilt for the amount of insurance carried on the structure, if the third story is eliminated and the two lower floors repaired. By reducing the old three-story school building to a two-story structure, officials say adequate space will be thereby provided for Trial Magistrates Court, the State's Attorney, County Engineer and such other offices as the county must provide.

In view of Helfrich's estimates, there is some question now as to whether or not this is possible, and further discussion and study will be necessary, it is indicated.
